Benton To Get Branch Bank

ORAN -- Earl Jarvis, president of Oran State Bank, announced today that the bank has received formal notification from the commissioner of finance of Missouri for authority to construct and operate a bank facility in Benton.

The Oran State Bank originated as the Blodgett Bank. In October of 1938, the bank was moved to Oran and the name was changed to Oran State Bank. The bank has total resources of over $5,555,000 and has capital accounts in excess of $650,000.

Preliminary arrangements are now being made for the preparation of building plans.

A site located across from the northwest corner of the courthouse, formerly occupied by Miller's Store, has been purchased from Elbert M. Jones of Benton.

Jarvis said a new law passed by the Missouri Legislature this year paved the way for the return of a banking institution to Benton. The new law allows banks within a 10- mile radius to apply for a banking facility in Benton.

Under the present laws, the new facility will be able to transact the following types of business; Checks may be paid, deposits received, deposits withdrawn, change made, exchange made, bank money orders

Man Claims Cheat

S. A. Hampton of 311 Lillian Drive told police Friday that two confidence men cheated him out of $2,000.

Hampton said he was at First National Bank Thursday afternoon when he was approached by a man who said he was new in town and paid him $25 for a ride to Sunset Addition, so he could see a woman there.

When they arrived where she was supposed to live, there was no woman, but another man was there and was also picked up by Hampton.

The first man told Hampton that he had $30,000 and was afraid of losing it. Hampton said he told him to put it in the bank. The man said he was afraid the bank wouldn't give it back.

All three agreed to meet Friday morning at the bank, so Hampton could show them how easy it was to draw money out of his account.

Hampton drew the money out and showed it to the first man who said he wanted to show it to the second, supposedly standing a block away. He walked off with the money while Hampton waited, and never returned.

$10,500 Allocated For City Welfare

(EDITOR'S NOTE:) This is the fifth in a series of articles about the 11 agencies benefiting from this year's Sikeston United Fund campaign. Today's article deals with the City Welfare Office)

By RON PORTER

A lot of people in Sikeston are thankful for the City Welfare Office.

And the City Welfare Office is thankful for the United Fund. This year the United Fund has allocated $10,500 to the office from its campaign goal of $46,327. It is the only agency that is supported entirely by the fund. The office is located at 111 North Scott St.

Mrs. Jewell Allen, the office director and only employee, helped 438 families last year, an increase of 58 over the previous year.

The office helps families find food, transportation to hospitals and medicine. It helps pay for gas and utility bills, fuel bills and clothing for children. Sometimes, Mrs. Allen said, the office is asked to help transients who are passing through town and need help.

The office will help in any way possible, Mrs. Allen said.

The help isn't always financial. Mrs. Allen helps families get birth certificates, find a home or a way to the doctor's office.

But it doesn't help those who draw welfare checks from the state. Its purpose is to help those the state does not help.

The welfare office helped distribute Christmas baskets last year to 266 needy families. The baskets were filled with food provided by local organizations and churches.

Mrs. Allen joined the welfare office 19 years ago, just two years after the office opened.

She is also executive secretary of the United Fund. The welfare office also serves as United Fund headquarters. All records of the United Fund are kept in the office.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

It is necessary that actions be louder than words in order to be heard above the boasting.

SMOKEY UNDER FIRE

Most people grow up believing that forest fires, like the plague, are to be avoided at all costs. But a growing number of foresters and conservationists now believe that fire can be a beneficial as well as a destructive force. According to these fire ecologists, a controlled fire this year often is the only way of preventing a catastrophic fire next year.

Advocates of controlled burning feel that the Smokey-the- Bear approach to forest fires is far too simplistic. There is no question that man can and should prevent many fires, but he cannot prevent them all. The longer a forest goes unburned, the more devastating the blaze will be when it eventually comes. A wildfire involves a triangle of causes: weather, fuel ignition. "Therefore," writes Robert Claibourne in Smithsonian (May 1972), "since weather is beyond man's control and ignition is at best only partly controllable, fuel would seem to be the most vulnerable point at which wildlife can be attacked." Periodic burning consumes much of the underbrush and litter -- needles, cones, dead branches and leaves -- on the forest floor, thereby preventing the buildup of this natural tinder. Smokey the Bear might rage, but the fire won't.

Fire ecology is not a new science. The Indians used fire to flush out game, ease traveling and to clear the land for their crops. But as Europeans moved across the land, accumulating property from coast to coast, man lost much of his tolerance for fire. Following a series of horrendous fires that swept Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota in the late 19th century -- caused primarily by the growth of commercial lumbering which created huge piles of combustible brush and sawdust -- the nation adopted an almost religious anti-fire policy.

Despite increasing evidence of the beneficial effects of fire in shaping the vegetation of a region, many foresters still are reluctant to adopt fire as one of their tools. "No matter what the advantages of controlled burning ... the accidental fire that destroys property and wildlife is a disaster," says Mal Hardy of the National Forest Service (Sports Illustrated, June 12, 1972). "I don't think any practical purpose is served by giving the public the notion that it is good to start fires casually or ignore them once they are burning." This, of course, is not what the fire ecologists are advocating. "The issue is not letting nature take its course," says Claibourne, "but of utilizing natural processes under human control -- of working with nature rather than against it."

BIARNI HERIULFSON DAY?

American schoolchildren used to be taught that "Columbus sailed the ocean blue/ In fourteen-hundred ninety-two" and in the process discovered America. Columbus was so revered that the country set aside Oct. 12 to commemorate the day on which the Italian explorer sighted San Salvador Island, about 66 miles southeast of Miami. From time to time, a few ivory-tower academics disputed Columbus's claim to fame, but their scholarly debates received little public attention.

Then, in 1965, Yale University revealed that research specialists had uncovered and authenticated an ancient map which showed that a Scandinavian explorer named Leif Erikson and his Viking crewmen reached North American shores and settled briefly in Newfoundland about the year 1000 -- almost five centuries before Columbus. Scholars are still debating the merits of that map, but the country will pay homage to the intrepid Norseman on Leif Erickson Day, Monday, Oct. 9. Because of the Monday Holiday legislation, Columbus Day will be observed on the same date this year.

Harvard historian Samuel Eliot Morison, in European Discovery of America (1971), disputes the authenticity of the map but not the claim that Erikson was the first European to land on the American continent. Morison, however, credits a Norwegian trader named Biarni Heriulfson, who sighted the cost of Labrador before Erikson's journey, as the true "discoverer" of the New World. "Let us give Biarni Heriulfson his due as the earliest, Number One, indubitable European discoverer of American, even if he never landed. But for his voyage, who would ever have heard of Leif?"

While scholars and Italian- and Scandinavian - Americans debate whether Erikson or Columbus discovered America, archeologists and historians periodically uncover rival claimants for the honor. These have included the Arabs, Basques, Catalans, Chinese, Dutch, French, Germans, Hindus, Japanese, Phoenicians, Polynesians, Portuguese, Romans, Turks and Welsh. And this year, Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal, the man who tracked down Adolf Eichmann, published a book which claims that Columbus had converted to Judaism and journeyed to America in search of the 10 lost tribes of Israel.

CALIFORNIA PULLS IN ITS WELCOME MAT

Years before the 1970 census officially confirmed the fact, California claimed to have dethroned New York as the most populous state in the Union.

Since then, neither earthquakes, smog, perennial brushfires and mud slides nor hard times in the aerospace industry have significantly slowed the continuing westward movement of Americans to the Golden State.

Now, however, the gold is beginning to tarnish—not for newcomers but for those already there.

"We've come to the realization that growth for growth's sake is no longer desirable," says Victor Calvo, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Santa Clara County, one of the fastest-growing areas in the nation.

In recent months, local citizens groups have rebelled against new commercial and industrial developments, including what had been billed as "the largest shopping center in northern California" and a new jetport. An antipopulation-growth group placed newspaper advertisements urging prospective immigrants to stay away.

Santa Clara County is not unique. A survey conducted by Prof. Judith Blake Davis, chairman of the Department of Demography at the Berkeley campus of the University of California, found that millions of Californians are now willing to support policies that would slow or end migration into the state. These range from reducing welfare to stopping publicity boosting California all the way to outright restrictions.

Some 80 per cent of white California citizens believe that population growth is a paramount factor in environmental problems. Nonwhites are only slightly less concerned; 77 per cent of them put environmental problems in first and second place.

The survey suggests that population control policy may be less a taboo issue than politicians have traditionally feared, says Dr. Davis.

And that has far-reaching implications not only for California but for all of the United States.

GRAIN DEAL AFTERMATH

Investigation of the deal under which the United States is to sell the Soviet Union about 400 million bushels of wheat in the next nine months is beginning to show that the United States Department of Agriculture handling of this matter was at least inept.

It is perhaps unfortunate that his deal was negotiated so close to the national elections. Injection of this issue into the political campaign may be magnifying the errors or indiscretions which were involved and the degree to which the grain companies have profited from government policies.

Nevertheless, the testimony already given to the congressional committee which is investigating indicates that some better means of arranging deals of this magnitude need to be developed.

That will not be easy. One of the problems is that the United States and the Soviet Union operate in different ways. The Russians control not only their own production of goods but also the prices. The United States operates with government negotiations but with actual sales being made through private companies. The breakdown in the meshing of these two systems in this grain deal for whatever reason or to whatever extent casts some doubts on the ability of the two mations to work out similar negotiations and sales in other areas. The grain deal after all was supposed to be just the first of a number of such projects developing out of the trade agreements worked out by President Nixon and his advisers earlier this year.

Certainly a more orderly system of developing such deals is indicated in the grain affair. It is difficult to believe that nearly 800 million bushels of United States wheat were sold for export between late June and the end of August. That was one- third more than the United States exported in the preceding 12 months.

It is to be hoped that Congress now will look into the export subsidy policy under which it now appears the grain companies made substantial profits while farmers who sold their winter wheat immediately after this year's harvest failed to share in the price grains that resulted from the tremendous surge in exports of their crop.

The way in which this policy was applied served in large part to drive up the wheat price in the United States market very sharply and to bunch the sales on the front end of the deal. More adroit handling of the subsidy in Washington could have spaced out the sales over a much longer period and prevented that sharp price climb.

Yet another question raised by all this is the "revolving door" policy for high officials in the USDA. The fact that two of the USDA officials, one an assistant secretary in charge of international affairs and president of the government's Commodity Credit Corp. and the other the general sales manager for the USDA's Export Marketing Service, left the department in June — when the grain deal was being developed — and took executive jobs with two of the nation's largest grain firms has led to suspicions that there might have been some under the table dealings. Nothing has been proved in this area, but even if the changes were coincidences the timing has created embarrassment for an administration which for some time has been under fire from farm groups for allegedly being partial to agribusiness rather than to farmers.

AMENDEMENT NO. 1
WILL PROBABLY PASS

Amendment No. 1, to be voted upon at the November election, will probably be approved by the voters, for several reasons.

It provides exemption from taxation of household goods, gives tax relief on part of their real property to persons over 65, exempts most intagible property from taxation, provides for a replacement to cities, counties, etc. for taxes lost because of the exemptions, gives financial relief to renters over 65.

Those over 65 will probably all vote for it.

Those who have household goods on which they now pay taxes will probably all vote for it.

Those who own intagible property will probably all vote for it.

Officials concerned with any possible loss of revenue will probably vote for it, since they'll have the same amount of money with which to work.

It appears to have something in it for almost everyone.

What we haven't figured out, and what hasn't yet been publicized is where will the money lost through these exemptions come from? We're already short of funds in city, county, state, and can't lose money without replacing it in some other tax form.

FREEDOM AND PRIVILEGE

One way of looking at freedom is the right to do anything you like so long as it doesn't infringe on someone else's rights, that is, as long as it doesn't harm someone else or interfere with the other person's freedom. You can swing your arm in a wide circle so long as it doesn't hit someone else or deter that someone from swinging his arm just as widely.

When a person wants more freedom at someone else's expense, that's not freedom at all; that's privilege. When a group of protesters wants to air its grievances, it has a constitutional freedom to do so. But when it wants to use a bustling business district to make speeches, it is undermining the rights of the businessmen and customers in that area.

When a group of students occupies a college administration building, it is seeking privilege, not freedom. The group may have legitimate complaints, but a building belonging to a private school or a state university owned by all the taxpayers and administered by a representative of the people, it is not fair game for any privileged group.

Freedom of speech is a constitutionally -guaranteed freedom, but no one has the right to yell "fire" in a crowded theater. There are limitations on all our freedoms.

We have the right to life, liberty and property, but even these are limited. To have these rights, we must respect the rights of others in their freedom to live, to be free, and to own property. When we ask for freedom beyond others, we are asking for privilege. HLH

New Dollar Diplomacy:
U.S. Money Boycott of a World Organization Forces Communist Bloc to End Abuse

By Victor Riesel

UNITED NATIONS— This is a report on American dollar diplomacy and how the Communist bloc learned to respect it-- and how the U.S., although it foots most of the bills for one international organization, no longer has to take most of the abuse in it from the Soviets and their client Socialist states.

To begin with, the other night I found myself in a group with David Rockefeller, Secretary of State William Rogers, and that sauve Austrian diplomat, United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim. He made a polished speech to the gathering of the Council on foreign Relations, which in effect urged the assemblage to support the UN-- meaning to me, financially of course. He did not mention that the U.S. now pays almost a third of the UN budget and that in one recent year spent over $300 million on special agencies and allied assistance.

Nor did he mention that the behemoth Peoples Republic of China (Communist mainland) pays only 4 per cent or $8 million annually.

Nor did General Waldheim report that the Soviet Union is $120 million behind in special assessments-- and only Waldheim's accountants can tell us what else they owe.

The astute Austrian diplomat, knowing well his sophisticated audience, subtly reminded it with gracious innuendos that he was aware that the U.S. was seeking to cut its share of heavy payments to the world organization. Applause, very polite.

So that night, rather than to bed, I dug into some recent reports from another world body where the U.S. also has been paying most of the bills and had been getting most of the abuse-- namely, the UN's specialized agency, Geneva (Switzerland) -based International Labor Organization (ILO). This is a tripartite, labor- management-government agency born in the old League of Nation days, and now virtually autonomous.

For years the Soviets have been using it as a political forum though its charter calls for discussions of industrial problems. Anti- capitalist calumny was shoved onto anti-capitalist calumny, the U.S. was vilified, and the name and spirit of Israel was desecrated.

And yet the U.S. was, and still is, paying 25 per cent of the cost of running the 123-nation organization. And special assessments for specialized projects. Finally in 1966, the U.S. labor delegation decided not to take it any more. The Communist bloc had pushed through the election of a Pole as president of the ILO, by one vote, though his nation had several times been warned that its smashing of its unions was in violation of the ILO's charter of freedom of action. The Pole defeated the free world's Gerard Veldkamp, former Minister of Labor of the Netherlands, a name to remember for a few months. But the U.S. was back again until 1970.

That year the Communist bloc, led by the Russians, launched 34 attacks on the U.S., pushed through other propaganda moves and only a disdain for self- respect could have kept the Americans in. They walked out. They told their story back home to a subcommittee on appropriations headed by Congressman John Rooney and the committee voted not to pay its dues to the ILO (dues are paid by Congressional appropriation).

The ensuing screams could be heard from Vladivostok to the outraged editorial offices of the New York Times. But Rooney stuck to his financial guns. Then the General Secretary of the ILO, Wilfred Jenks, who, I can attest, thinks very little of most of the American delegates, began to realize what American pocketbook diplomacy could mean. He was running low on his funds since the U.S. now owed some $20 million in back dues.

He realized that the American dues equalled about seven months of ILO's 1972 projected budget. Without it he would have to curtail activities in that handsome lakeside palace in Geneva. He fired 140 of the ILO's already overstaffed secretariat. He cut research and public relations activities. He suspended the picture magazine Panarama, which had run articles extolling, for example, V.I. Lenin (an article which did not include the untold incident of Lenin, who on being summoned from a conference by a distraught cabinet aide, asked what was all the excitement about, and on being told that the secret police were about to execute one of his cabinet members's friends, said, "Comrade, for the sake of just one life you pull me out of an important meeting?").

There was a general slash in everything including a series of industrial ILO sessions and subcommittees, to which delegates junket from all over the world. So it went. But Congressman Rooney held fast until he believed the ILO was operating as it was intended to under its charter and not by the rules set by the strategists of the U.S.S.R. The ILO swung right and center. The Congress voted to pay its back dues up to 1972 and now according to reports owes only some $4 million.

Then came last June's worldwide session in Geneva, similar to the UN's General Assembly. Some 1,300 delegates from 119 nations attended. They elected the American labor delegate Rudy Raupl as vice president and his ally Gerard Veldkamp as president.

The Dutch representative, a lover of freedom, ran a democratic session by their rules.

The Czechoslovakian delegation was told that it was in violation because men were being fired because the Communist Party found them unreliable-- a development which began in 1968 when Soviet troops occupied the land.

President Veldkamp blocked all Communist attempts to use the session as a political forum. He ordered Carlos Lehuga Hevia, the Cuban government representative, off the platform when Hevia tried to portray Puerto Rico as a U.S. "colony" denying its citizens political and trade union rights. And when Augusto Jimenez, Chile's undersecretary of labor, also a delegate, protested that Veldkamp had ordered the Cuban comrade off the platform in mid- speech, Veldkamp ruled against him, too. Government delegates of Guinea and the Congo who began attacking the U.S. were cut short by Veldkamp who then expunged their remarks from the record. The Russians barely mentioned Israel and Vietnam, though outside the hall in their broadcast they attacked Secretary General Jenks, for not mentioning these in his annual report to the assemblage.

But the rule of order prevailed. Then the ILO congress turned to what is its essential task-- environment, technology, education, automation on the docks, equality for women-- and so on into the world of work.

There's the effect of dollar diplomacy at its best. Some of it would do no harm to the free world at the United Nations.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— Congessman James Aloysius Byrne, the lameduck from Philadelphia, is planning a final fling at the taxpayers expense this month.

A cable has gone out from the State Department, alering our diplomatic outposts along the Mediterranean to roll out the red carpet for Byrne and his entourage.

He will be accompanied, says the cable,"by Mrs. Byrne, Miss Virginia Maxwell, niece; Miss Christine Brown; niece; and Lt. Col. Charles L. Moore, USA escort."

With the lieutenant colonel to carry their bags, Byrne and his ladies are scheduled to leave this weekend for Paris. Then they will head south for Nice, Genoa, Athens, Istanbul and other Mediterranena vacation spots. They will also visit Vienna, Berchtesgaden, Munich and Berlin.

As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, Byrne is authorized to make military inspection trips at government expense. However, he was defeated in Philadelphia's Democratic primary and won't be back in Congress next year to make use of the military insight he may gain in such places as Nice, Genoa and Berchtesgaden.

Unbowed in defeat, Byrne is determined to go out in style. He has demanded, for instance, that he be met at every European stop by high American officials.

The State Department cable, signed by Undersecretary of State John Irwin, explains: "Request to being met by high officials is due to (Congressman), himself, who has made it clear that this is his desire...Suggest that the highest ranking military member be present on arrivals."

At some stops, Byrne expects to go through the formality of military briefings. But on these occasions, according to the cable, he has requested "suitable separate itinerary and English speaking escort for Mrs. Byrne and party."

That isn't all he wants. "Request government sedan be provided during visit," continues the cable. "Where not available, provide assistance in obtaining train tickets.

"Request that detailed itinerary, including overnight accommodations, and travel arrangements be prepared in coordination with local Am embassies, mission, consulates...The necessary accommodations to be made are for two doubles w/bath and one single w/bath."

Adds the cable meaningfully: "News media coverage not desired."

Footnote: We made repeated calls both to Byrne's office and home for his comment. He failed to return the calls.

--MCGOVERN AND ITT--

Senator George McGovern has been fed, apparently, by the hand he's biting.

While he has been denouncing ITT's offer to help finance the Republican convention in exchange for favorable settlements of anti-trust suits, he has accepted a $100,000 loan from Alva T. Bonda, chairman of the ITT Consumer Services Corporation.

This happens to be a wholly- owned subsidiary of the great ITT conglomerate that McGovern has been railing against in the presidential campaign. Bonda, however, is currently on leave from ITT to work on private financial matters.

Bonda not only loaned McGovern $100,000 but gave him another $3,000 as an outright contribution. Reached at his office in Cleveland, Bonda said he delivered his campaign offerings to the McGovern organization in July. This was several weeks after the Senate hearings into the GOP— ITT connections.

A spokesman for the Democratic presidential candidate said that Bonda volunteered the money, that no strings were attached and that the contributions were "out in the open."

--SWELTERING SICK--

While sick veterans at the Fort Hamilton Veterans Hospital in Brooklyn sweltered in the summer heat, the Veterans Administration and its contractor managed between them to delay air conditioning for three years past the contract date.

Now the contractor, Blackhawk Heating and Plumbing, is asking for more than twice the $4,888,000 contract award for goofs, changes and other woes it blames on the VA or outside circumstances. These are the findings of a confidential General Accounting Office report ordered by Rep. John Murphy, D N.Y. whose investigators found patients at the hospital this summer sweating through their garments and walking on floors slippery with water from a leaky system.

The GAO says the contract was awarded Blackhawk more than six years ago. The job was supposed to be completed by June 14, 1969. But the VA confirmed to us that the finishing touches are still being put on the work.

The VA has already paid out an extra $2 million for change orders on a Blackhawk claim, but the company is demanding another $5.3 million according to the GAO report.

Blackhawk vice president Gordon Sutherland told us VA rescheduling change orders, the weather, a strike and other unforeseen factors caused the delays and sent the costs of the cooling system soaring.

SMOKEY UNDER FIRE

Most people grow up believing that forest fires, like the plague, are to be avoided at all costs. But a growing number of foresters and conservationists now believe that fire can be a beneficial as well as a destructive force. According to these fire ecologists, a controlled fire this year often is the only way of preventing a catastrophic fire next year.

Advocates of controlled burning feel that the Smokey-the- Bear approach to forest fires is far too simplistic. There is no question that man can and should prevent many fires, but he cannot prevent them all. The longer a forest goes unburned, the more devastating the blaze will be when it eventually comes. A wildfire involves a triangle of causes: weather, fuel ignition. "Therefore," writes Robert Claibourne in Smithsonian (May 1972), "since weather is beyond man's control and ignition is at best only partly controllable, fuel would seem to be the most vulnerable point at which wildlife can be attacked." Periodic burning consumes much of the underbrush and litter -- needles, cones, dead branches and leaves -- on the forest floor, thereby preventing the buildup of this natural tinder. GRAIN DEAL AFTERMATH

Investigation of the deal under which the United States is to sell the Soviet Union about 400 million bushels of wheat in the next nine months is beginning to show that the United States Department of Agriculture handling of this matter was at least inept.

It is perhaps unfortunate that his deal was negotiated so close to the national elections. Injection of this issue into the political campaign may be magnifying the errors or indiscretions which were involved and the degree to which the grain companies have profited from government policies.

Nevertheless, the testimony already given to the congressional committee which is investigating indicates that some better means of arranging deals of this magnitude need to be developed.

That will not be easy. One of the problems is that the United States and the Soviet Union operate in different ways. The Russians control not only their own production of goods but also the prices. The United States operates with government negotiations but with actual sales being made through private companies. The breakdown in the meshing of these two systems in this grain deal for whatever reason or to whatever extent casts some doubts on the ability of the two nations to work out similar negotiations and sales in other areas. The grain deal after all was supposed to be just the first of a number of such projects developing out of the trade agreements worked out by President Nixon and his advisers earlier this year.

Certainly a more orderly system of developing such deals is indicated in the grain affair. It is difficult to believe that nearly 800 million bushels of United States wheat were sold for export between late June and the end of August. That was one- third more than the United States exported in the preceding 12 months.

It is to be hoped that Congress now will look into the export subsidy policy under which it now appears the grain companies made substantial profits while farmers who sold their winter wheat immediately after this year's harvest failed to share in the price grains that resulted from the tremendous surge in exports of their crop.

The way in which this policy was applied served in large part to drive up the wheat price in the United States market very sharply and to bunch the sales on the front end of the deal. More adroit handling of the subsidy in Washington could have spaced out the sales over a much longer period and prevented that sharp price climb.

Yet another question raised by all this is the "revolving door" policy for high officials in the USDA. The fact that two of the USDA officials, one an assistant secretary in charge of international affairs and president of the government's Commodity Credit Corp. and the other the general sales manager for the USDA's Export Marketing Service, left the department in June — when the grain deal was being developed — and took executive jobs with two of the nation's largest grain firms has led to suspicions that there might have been some under the table dealings. Nothing has been proved in this area, but even if the changes were coincidences the timing has created embarrassment for an administration which for some time has been under fire from farm groups for allegedly being partial to agribusiness rather than to farmers.

AMENDEMENT NO. 1
WILL PROBABLY PASS

Amendment No. 1, to be voted upon at the November election, will probably be approved by the voters, for several reasons.

It provides exemption from taxation of household goods, gives tax relief on part of their real property to persons over 65, exempts most intagible property from taxation, provides for a replacement to cities, counties, etc. for taxes lost because of the exemptions, gives financial relief to renters over 65.

Those over 65 will probably all vote for it.

Those who have household goods on which they now pay taxes will probably all vote for it.

Those who own intagible property will probably all vote for it.

Officials concerned with any possible loss of revenue will probably vote for it, since they'll have the same amount of money with which to work.

It appears to have something in it for almost everyone.

What we haven't figured out, and what hasn't yet been publicized is where will the money lost through these exemptions come from? We're already short of funds in city, county, state, and can't lose money without replacing it in some other tax form.

FREEDOM AND PRIVILEGE

One way of looking at freedom is the right to do anything you like so long as it doesn't infringe on someone else's rights, that is, as long as it doesn't harm someone else or interfere with the other person's freedom. You can swing your arm in a wide circle so long as it doesn't hit someone else or deter that someone from swinging his arm just as widely.

When a person wants more freedom at someone else's expense, that's not freedom at all; that's privilege. When a group of protesters wants to air its grievances, it has a constitutional freedom to do so. But when it wants to use a bustling business district to make speeches, it is undermining the rights of the businessmen and customers in that area.

When a group of students occupies a college administration building, it is seeking privilege, not freedom. The group may have legitimate complaints, but a building belonging to a private school or a state university owned by all the taxpayers and administered by a representative of the people, it is not fair game for any privileged group.

Freedom of speech is a constitutionally -guaranteed freedom, but no one has the right to yell "fire" in a crowded theater. There are limitations on all our freedoms.

We have the right to life, liberty and property, but even these are limited. To have these rights, we must respect the rights of others in their freedom to live, to be free, and to own property. When we ask for freedom beyond others, we are asking for privilege. HLH

New Dollar Diplomacy:
U.S. Money Boycott of a World Organization Forces Communist Bloc to End Abuse

By Victor Riesel

UNITED NATIONS—This is a report on American dollar diplomacy and how the Communist bloc learned to respect it-- and how the U.S., although it foots most of the bills for one international organization, no longer has to take most of the abuse in it from the Soviets and their client Socialist states.

To begin with, the other night I found myself in a group with David Rockefeller, Secretary of State William Rogers, and that sauve Austrian diplomat, United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim. He made a polished speech to the gathering of the Council on foreign Relations, which in effect urged the assemblage to support the UN--meaning to me, financially of course. He did not mention that the U.S. now pays almost a third of the UN budget and that in one recent year spent over $300 million on special agencies and allied assistance.

Nor did he mention that the behemoth Peoples Republic of China (Communist mainland) pays only 4 per cent or $8 million annually.

Nor did General Waldheim report that the Soviet Union is $120 million behind in special assessments-- and only Waldheim's accountants can tell us what else they owe.

The astute Austrian diplomat, knowing well his sophisticated audience, subtly reminded it with gracious innuendos that he was aware that the U.S. was seeking to cut its share of heavy payments to the world organization. Applause, very polite.

So that night, rather than to bed, I dug into some recent reports from another world body where the U.S. also has been paying most of the bills and had been getting most of the abuse-- namely, the UN's specialized agency, Geneva (Switzerland) -based International Labor Organization (ILO). This is a tripartite, labor- management-government agency born in the old League of Nation days, and now virtually autonomous.

For years the Soviets have been using it as a political forum though its charter calls for discussions of industrial problems. Anti- capitalist calumny was shoved onto anti-capitalist calumny, the U.S. was vilified, and the name and spirit of Israel was desecrated.

And yet the U.S. was, and still is, paying 25 per cent of the cost of running the 123-nation organization. And special assessments for specialized projects. Finally in 1966, the U.S. labor delegation decided not to take it any more. The Communist bloc had pushed through the election of a Pole as president of the ILO, by one vote, though his nation had several times been warned that its smashing of its unions was in violation of the ILO's charter of freedom of action. The Pole defeated the free world's Gerard Veldkamp, former Minister of Labor of the Netherlands, a name to remember for a few months. But the U.S. was back again until 1970.

That year the Communist bloc, led by the Russians, launched 34 attacks on the U.S., pushed through other propaganda moves and only a disdain for self- respect could have kept the Americans in. They walked out. They told their story back home to a subcommittee on appropriations headed by Congressman John Rooney and the committee voted not to pay its dues to the ILO (dues are paid by Congressional appropriation).

The ensuing screams could be heard from Vladivostok to the outraged editorial offices of the New York Times. But Rooney stuck to his financial guns. Then the General Secretary of the ILO, Wilfred Jenks, who, I can attest, thinks very little of most of the American delegates, began to realize what American pocketbook diplomacy could mean. He was running low on his funds since the U.S. now owed some $20 million in back dues.

He realized that the American dues equalled about seven months of ILO's 1972 projected budget. Without it he would have to curtail activities in that handsome lakeside palace in Geneva. He fired 140 of the ILO's already overstaffed secretariat. He cut research and public relations activities. He suspended the picture magazine Panarama, which had run articles extolling, for example, V.I. Lenin (an article which did not include the untold incident of Lenin, who on being summoned from a conference by a distraught cabinet aide, asked what was all the excitement about, and on being told that the secret police were about to execute one of his cabinet members's friends, said, "Comrade, for the sake of just one life you pull me out of an important meeting?").

There was a general slash in everything including a series of industrial ILO sessions and subcommittees, to which delegates junket from all over the world. So it went. But Congressman Rooney held fast until he believed the ILO was operating as it was intended to under its charter and not by the rules set by the strategists of the U.S.S.R. The ILO swung right and center. The Congress voted to pay its back dues up to 1972 and now according to reports owes only some $4 million.

Then came last June's worldwide session in Geneva, similar to the UN's General Assembly. Some 1,300 delegates from 119 nations attended. They elected the American labor delegate Rudy Raupl as vice president and his ally Gerard Veldkamp as president.

The Dutch representative, a lover of freedom, ran a democratic session by their rules.

The Czechoslovakian delegation was told that it was in violation because men were being fired because the Communist Party found them unreliable-- a development which began in 1968 when Soviet troops occupied the land.

President Veldkamp blocked all Communist attempts to use the session as a political forum. He ordered Carlos Lehuga Hevia, the Cuban government representative, off the platform when Hevia tried to portray Puerto Rico as a U.S. "colony" denying its citizens political and trade union rights. And when Augusto Jimenez, Chile's undersecretary of labor, also a delegate, protested that Veldkamp had ordered the Cuban comrade off the platform in mid- speech, Veldkamp ruled against him, too. Government delegates of Guinea and the Congo who began attacking the U.S. were cut short by Veldkamp who then expunged their remarks from the record. The Russians barely mentioned Israel and Vietnam, though outside the hall in their broadcast they attacked Secretary General Jenks, for not mentioning these in his annual report to the assemblage.

But the rule of order prevailed. Then the ILO congress turned to what is its essential task-- environment, technology, education, automation on the docks, equality for women-- and so on into the world of work.

There's the effect of dollar diplomacy at its best. Some of it would do no harm to the free world at the United Nations.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—Congressman James Aloysius Byrne, the lameduck from Philadelphia, is planning a final fling at the taxpayers expense this month.

A cable has gone out from the State Department, alering our diplomatic outposts along the Mediterranean to roll out the red carpet for Byrne and his entourage.

He will be accompanied, says the cable,"by Mrs. Byrne, Miss Virginia Maxwell, niece; Miss Christine Brown; niece; and Lt. Col. Charles L. Moore, USA escort."

With the lieutenant colonel to carry their bags, Byrne and his ladies are scheduled to leave this weekend for Paris. Then they will head south for Nice, Genoa, Athens, Istanbul and other Mediterranena vacation spots. They will also visit Vienna, Berchtesgaden, Munich and Berlin.

As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, Byrne is authorized to make military inspection trips at government expense. However, he was defeated in Philadelphia's Democratic primary and won't be back in Congress next year to make use of the military insight he may gain in such places as Nice, Genoa and Berchtesgaden.

Unbowed in defeat, Byrne is determined to go out in style. He has demanded, for instance, that he be met at every European stop by high American officials.

The State Department cable, signed by Undersecretary of State John Irwin, explains: "Request to being met by high officials is due to (Congressman), himself, who has made it clear that this is his desire...Suggest that the highest ranking military member be present on arrivals."

At some stops, Byrne expects to go through the formality of military briefings. But on these occasions, according to the cable, he has requested "suitable separate itinerary and English speaking escort for Mrs. Byrne and party."

That isn't all he wants. "Request government sedan be provided during visit," continues the cable. "Where not available, provide assistance in obtaining train tickets.

"Request that detailed itinerary, including overnight accommodations, and travel arrangements be prepared in coordination with local Am embassies, mission, consulates...The necessary accommodations to be made are for two doubles w/bath and one single w/bath."

Adds the cable meaningfully: "News media coverage not desired."

Footnote: We made repeated calls both to Byrne's office and home for his comment. He failed to return the calls.

--MCGOVERN AND ITT--

Senator George McGovern has been fed, apparently, by the hand he's biting.

While he has been denouncing ITT's offer to help finance the Republican convention in exchange for favorable settlements of anti-trust suits, he has accepted a $100,000 loan from Alva T. Bonda, chairman of the ITT Consumer Services Corporation.

This happens to be a wholly- owned subsidiary of the great ITT conglomerate that McGovern has been railing against in the presidential campaign. Bonda, however, is currently on leave from ITT to work on private financial matters.

Bonda not only loaned McGovern $100,000 but gave him another $3,000 as an outright contribution. Reached at his office in Cleveland, Bonda said he delivered his campaign offerings to the McGovern organization in July. This was several weeks after the Senate hearings into the GOP—ITT connections.

A spokesman for the Democratic presidential candidate said that Bonda volunteered the money, that no strings were attached and that the contributions were "out in the open."

--SWELTERING SICK--

While sick veterans at the Fort Hamilton Veterans Hospital in Brooklyn sweltered in the summer heat, the Veterans Administration and its contractor managed between them to delay air conditioning for three years past the contract date.

Now the contractor, Blackhawk Heating and Plumbing, is asking for more than twice the $4,888,000 contract award for goofs, changes and other woes it blames on the VA or outside circumstances. These are the findings of a confidential General Accounting Office report ordered by Rep. John Murphy, D N.Y. whose investigators found patients at the hospital this summer sweating through their garments and walking on floors slippery with water from a leaky system.

The GAO says the contract was awarded Blackhawk more than six years ago. The job was supposed to be completed by June 14, 1969. But the VA confirmed to us that the finishing touches are still being put on the work.

The VA has already paid out an extra $2 million for change orders on a Blackhawk claim, but the company is demanding another $5.3 million according to the GAO report.

Blackhawk vice president Gordon Sutherland told us VA rescheduling change orders, the weather, a strike and other unforeseen factors caused the delays and sent the costs of the cooling system soaring.

Finance Study Group Proposes Public School For Three-Year-Olds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Three-year-old tykes will be attending public schools by 1976 and an increased sales tax will take some of the burden off property taxes if preliminary recommendations from a school finance study are implemented.

Another proposal suggests eliminating 115 of the state's 605 school districts.

Since last December, 108 Missourians—doctors, lawyers, housewives, businessmen, students, farmers and 27 legislatirs—have been studying the state's public school system with emphasis on collecting and distributing tax funds.

The committee of 108 broke up into four subcommittees: school district structure, distribution of funds, educational programs and sources of funds.

Under the direction of the state Department of Education, the four preliminary reports are being discussed in 13 public hearings around the state.

Although there are a few things in the report he doesn't like, Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory praised the study as "the single most important thing we're doing."

"But it's not just a Department of Education project," he said. "It's a citizen project. We'll take the input from the hearings and then draft one over-all report.

"Then we'll try to sell the recommendations to the legislature (in cases where a change in a law is required).

"We know that the program we're now offering is not perfect," Mallory added. "We know that we don't have equal educational opportunity in this state, not for those with special needs, or for the many who need vocational training so they can earn a living."

Although endorsing vocational education, the subcommittee on educational programs made no specific curricula recommendations.

Mallory has pushed early childhood education and an expanded junior college and vocational educational program.

The subcommittees on district structure and educational programs recommended that by 1980, all public school districts should be within a junior college district.

There are now 12 junior college districts with 29 campuses that are within access of only half of the more than one millicon Missouri pupils in the kindergarten through 12th grade.

The subcommittee on programs quoted baby doctor Benjamin Spock in recommending public school education for 3and 4-year-olds.

"In terms of intelligence measured at age 17, about 50 per cent of the development takes place between conception and age 4 and 30 per cent between ages 4 and 8."

"Recent research," the subcommittee said, "has provided growing evidence that many characteristics of a child which are conducive to success in school and later life are shaped at an early age."

The subcommittee recommended a format much like a nursery school:

Classes would have 15 to 20 youngsters, with a teacher and two aides —college students training to be teachers—and a mother of one of the children.

Youngsters would go to school two hours a day at least two days a week.

Mallory has recommended having the early childhood classes on Saturdays.

"This will not be a nursery school," he vows.

It would not be a carbon copy of television's Sesame Street, but some of the practices would be similar. Attendance would be voluntary and it would be free of charge.

The primary purpose of the program would be to discover learning problems such as bad hearing, sight and speech problems, and to deal with them early.

Missouri has 80,000 youngsters in the 3-4 group.

Mildred Winter, who helped start a successful preschool program in the Ferguson-Florissant district, joined the state Department of Education last week to organize the statewide program.

There now is no state funding for early childhood programs. The subcommittee suggested the cost could be offset in savings from remedial and special education programs, which would be reduced in higher grades.

The reort did not suggest whether new schools should be built for the early childhood programs.

The four subcommittees duplicated and contradicted each other slightly.

The subcommittee on sources of revenue recommended against a statewide property tax to relieve the property tax burden on local districts, while the subcommittee on distribution of funds recommended a statewide property tax.

Behind the entire study is the fear of school officials that the U.S. Supreme Court will order a revised taxing structure to bring about more equal financial support for each pupil.

In Missouri, there are wide variances between districts in property taxes and state and federal support.

In Clayton, the assessed valuation of property averages $49,476 for every pupil in the city's schools, compared with a state low of $2,603 per pupil in Leopold in Bollinger County.

In St. Louis County, for example, local property taxes provide 72.4 per cent of the schools' money, while in Pulaski County, property taxes provide only 15.3 per cent. State and federal money pay the rest.

The highest local property tax levy is $5.96 per $100 of assessed valuation for a Belton high school district. The lowest is $2.20 in Worth.

This school year, it will take $926 million to operate the state's 3,000 schools, which serve slightly more than 1 million, including 42,000 in junior colleges.

Property taxes will provide $406 million, or 44 per cent.

A uniform levy of $3, regulated by the state tax commission, would provide $406 million, the report said.

Nearly half of the 605 districts have assessments at $3 or lower.

The federal government pays $66 million, and the rest comes from state school foundation money, fines, forfeitures, state income tax, intangible taxes, sales use taxes and the cigarette tax.

Because of a "grandfather clause" which says state aid can't be cut below a certain figure, richer districts get richer even if they don't have an unusually high assessment. That's because they have more valuable property to assess.

St. Louis County gets 24.2 per cent of its school costs paid by the state and 3.4 per cent paid from federal funds. In Pulaski County, state money provides 51.5 per cent of the support and federal, 33.2 per cent.

The subcommittee on financial sources, pointing out that 58 per cent of the state income tax goes to education, recommended eliminating federal and corporate tax deductions on state returns. That would raise $217 milliion. An increase of 1 per cent in the 3 per cent sales tax would bring in another $128 million, the report said.

The two news sources would allow less reliance upon the property tax and allow some districts to reduce assessments, the report said.

The subcommittee recommended giving a sales tax credit on the income tax. While counties should continue to collect and disburse property taxes, the subcommittee said, fines, forfeiturss and similar sources should be turned over to the state for collection and distribution.

Expenditures per pupil also vary greatly, the subcommittee on distribution of funds found. St. Louis spends an average of $1,906 per pupil from property taxes, compared with $394 in Pulaski County.

There should be a guaranteed assessed valuation per pupil, the subcommittee said, and state payments should be $600 per pupil on average daily attendance.

The state should continue to pay half the costs for building and land the report said.

The subcommittee on school district structure recommended that elementary districts with boards of six directors be eliminated. That would affect 115 districts.

Missouri ranks 10th in total districts in the nation with 695. Twenty years ago the state had 8,422 school districts.

Two districts have no schools and 155 districts operate only elementary schools, sending high school students elsewhere. And the high school students go where the tuition is less and not necessarily where the quality of education is better, the report said.

School enrollment varies widely. One high school has 4,000 students and another has only 50.

"Many are considered too large for maximum student learning and development," the report said. "Many are too small to offer a comprehensive program at a reasonable cost per pupil.

"The effort required to maintain a high school in districts with a limited number of pupils and financial resources has tended to restrict curriculum and services made available to elementary pupils."

Dowd, Bond To Share Missouri Bar Billing

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri's two gubernatorial candidates, Edward L. Dowd, St. Louis, and Christopher S. Bond, Mexico, will headline the 28th annual meeting of The Missouri Bar Oct. 11-13 at Chase- Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis.

While not in a debate, the candidates will appear together at the "Show-Me" Breakfast, outlining their positions on issues of importance and answering questions from the floor.

Some 800 Missouri lawyers and their wives are expected to attend the program which begins with preliminary activities Oct. 11, when the board of governors and the lawyers section council meet to elect new officers.

Another highlight of the day- and- a- half meeting will be a discussion Thursday by Bruce Coles, Barrister, London, England, contrasting defense procedures used in England with those in the United States.

The traditional "Show- Me" Breakfast and business meeting will be held at 8 a.m. Oct. 12. American bar Association President Robert W. Meserve, Boston, Mass., and St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes are scheduled to take part in the program.

During this session the Lon O. Hocker Awards and the President's Awards will be given. The honorary title of Senior Counsellor of The Missouri Bar will be granted to 48 attorneys who have served the legal profession in Missouri for 50 years or who have reached the age of 75.

A memorial service will be held in memory of those members of the bar who have died in the past year.

Thursday workshop sessions include discussion of a proposed new Uniform Probate Code and the vices and virtues of class actions from the viewpoint of the plaintiff, the defense and the corporation. Two concurrent panel sessions highlight the afternoon activities.

White House Labels Peace Stories 'Totally Speculative

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has left open the possibility of significant movement in the secret Vietnam negotiations over the next few weeks while labeling two current peace stories "totally speculative."

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler applied the label Friday to published reports from Saigon and London, but did not issue a flat denial. Official policy is not to comment on the private talks between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Off the record, other administration sources used stronger language to discount the stories while acknowledging that elements mentioned in them may have been involved in the secret talks in Paris.

The Saigon account, a United Press International story attributed to "informed sources," said the allies will make a new peace offer before the Nov. 7 U.S. election. The new offer, according to the account, would call for South Vietnam's president, Nguyen Van Thieu, to resign and for North Vietnam to end its infiltration of the South.

The story sent the stock market shooting upwards during the day and led Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern to say he'd "gladly sacrifice this election if we can end this war one day earlier."

The London Times pictured a broad Washington-Hanoi agreement for a settlement to take place after the election.

Nixon, who has denied that the election will influence his Vietnam negotiating terms, met Friday with Kissinger and his deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig.

Haig has just returned from conferring with Thieu and other South Vietnamese officials in Saigon. U.S. sources said Haig talked about the Paris negotiating session and, among other things, reassured Thieu that Nixon would not sacrifice the Thieu government for the sake of a quick pre-election deal with the enemy.

New Law Eliminates Poll Books

JACKSON — Cape Girardeau County apparently did not need poll books for the primary election and wouldn't have needed to order them for the general election, County Clerk Rusby C. Crites has told the county Court.

Crites said he has received notice of a new election law, which was signed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes May 2, that poll books are no longer necessary in counties that have voter registration.

There is nothing illegal about having the poll books, but it is an unnecessary expense and extra work for election officials under the new law.

The law says that in counties with voter registration, voters are to sign a registration slip and, together, these slips will constitute a poll book. In the past, voters signed the slip and a poll book was kept, too, a duplication.

The change is not a major election change, but Crites was critical of the notice of the change coming so late.

He pointed out that the county would not have had to print poll books for the August primary. Polls books have already been ordered for the November election, Crites said, and unless the order can be changed before they are printed, the county will have to pay for them.

The poll book is simply a register of who has voted in a precinct. By numbering the signed slips, the same objective can be achieved without the duplication.

Deadline Ends

BLOOMFIELD — The registration deadline for voting in the Nov. 7 general election in Stoddard county ended at noon today.

The deadline had originally been set for Monday, but the county clerk's office will be closed Monday in observance of Columbus Day.

Fire Damages Sikeston Home

Firemen were called at 6:10 a.m. today to the Goldie Alleman house at 169 Lee Street when a rug on a floor furance caught fire. Firemen say the blaze caused minor smoke damage and burned a door and a wall.

Woman Injured When Car Runs Off Road

Three accidents and three injuries were reported on area roads and highways Friday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

Nancy Sue Boatright, 22, of Bismarck received possible chest injuries Friday when the wheel of the car she was driving dropped off the pavement, causing her to lose control and strike a culvert to a private drive. She was taken to Farmington Community Hospital.

The accident occurred at 9:30 a.m. on Highway 21 in Bellevue.

A one- car accident at 4:50 p.m. Friday on Highway 60 two and one-half miles east of Dexter resulted in injuries to two persons. Injured were Timothy Tierney, 4, of Franklin Park, Ill., with minor cuts, and Clara Pryczynski, 66, of Chicago, Ill., with scratches.

Both were passengers in a car driven by Sharon Lee Tierney, 29, of Franklin Park, Ill. The accident occurred when a left rear tire blew out, causing the driver to lose control and overturn.

Patricia June Long, 27, of Jackson received cuts and bruises this morning when the car she was driving ran into the median on Interstate 55 and hit an overpass pillar. The accident occurred at 4:30 a.m. two miles north of Cape Girardeau. She was treated at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

2 Injured

Two people were slightly injured in a two- car accident at 10:15 p.m. Friday on East Malone Avenue near the Bulldog Inn.

Donald Joe Ray, 1618 East Matthews, was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for cuts and bruises, and Claude S. Mansker, 418 Helen, was treated for a cut on the chin.

According to police, the Mansker auto went into a skid trying to avoid hitting the rear of a car turning into the Bulldog Inn, crossed the centerline and struck the Ray car.

Custody Case Date Set

BENTON — A hearing was set for Oct. 12 in a child custody case involving Devise Bowman and Fred and Margie Lucey brought before Judge Marshall Craig in Circuit Court Friday. Mrs. Bowman is asking for the custody of two minor children.

A change of venue was granted to transfer the case of W. P. Hunter versus Herman Smith to Stoddard County. Hunter brought suit against Smith after he failed to pay a promissory note with principal and interest in the sum of $39,482.47.

Finance Study Group Proposes Public School For Three-Year-Olds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Three-year-old tykes will be attending public schools by 1976 and an increased sales tax will take some of the burden off property taxes if preliminary recommendations from a school finance study are implemented.

Another proposal suggests eliminating 115 of the state's 605 school districts.

Since last December, 108 Missourians—doctors, lawyers, housewives, businessmen, students, farmers and 27 legislatirs—have been studying the state's public school system with emphasis on collecting and distributing tax funds.

The committee of 108 broke up into four subcommittees: school district structure, distribution of funds, educational programs and sources of funds.

Under the direction of the state Department of Education, the four preliminary reports are being discussed in 13 public hearings around the state.

Although there are a few things in the report he doesn't like, Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory praised the study as "the single most important thing we're doing."

"But it's not just a Department of Education project," he said. "It's a citizen project. We'll take the input from the hearings and then draft one over-all report.

"Then we'll try to sell the recommendations to the legislature (in cases where a change in a law is required).

"We know that the program we're now offering is not perfect," Mallory added. "We know that we don't have equal educational opportunity in this state, not for those with special needs, or for the many who need vocational training so they can earn a living."

Although endorsing vocational education, the subcommittee on educational programs made no specific curricula recommendations.

Mallory has pushed early childhood education and an expanded junior college and vocational educational program.

The subcommittees on district structure and educational programs recommended that by 1980, all public school districts should be within a junior college district.

There are now 12 junior college districts with 29 campuses that are within access of only half of the more than one millicon Missouri pupils in the kindergarten through 12th grade.

The subcommittee on programs quoted baby doctor Benjamin Spock in recommending public school education for 3and 4-year-olds.

"In terms of intelligence measured at age 17, about 50 per cent of the development takes place between conception and age 4 and 30 per cent between ages 4 and 8."

"Recent research," the subcommittee said, "has provided growing evidence that many characteristics of a child which are conducive to success in school and later life are shaped at an early age."

The subcommittee recommended a format much like a nursery school:

Classes would have 15 to 20 youngsters, with a teacher and two aides —college students training to be teachers—and a mother of one of the children.

Youngsters would go to school two hours a day at least two days a week.

Mallory has recommended having the early childhood classes on Saturdays.

"This will not be a nursery school," he vows.

It would not be a carbon copy of television's Sesame Street, but some of the practices would be similar. Attendance would be voluntary and it would be free of charge.

The primary purpose of the program would be to discover learning problems such as bad hearing, sight and speech problems, and to deal with them early.

Missouri has 80,000 youngsters in the 3-4 group.

Mildred Winter, who helped start a successful preschool program in the Ferguson-Florissant district, joined the state Department of Education last week to organize the statewide program.

There now is no state funding for early childhood programs. The subcommittee suggested the cost could be offset in savings from remedial and special education programs, which would be reduced in higher grades.

The reort did not suggest whether new schools should be built for the early childhood programs.

The four subcommittees duplicated and contradicted each other slightly.

The subcommittee on sources of revenue recommended against a statewide property tax to relieve the property tax burden on local districts, while the subcommittee on distribution of funds recommended a statewide property tax.

Behind the entire study is the fear of school officials that the U.S. Supreme Court will order a revised taxing structure to bring about more equal financial support for each pupil.

In Missouri, there are wide variances between districts in property taxes and state and federal support.

In Clayton, the assessed valuation of property averages $49,476 for every pupil in the city's schools, compared with a state low of $2,603 per pupil in Leopold in Bollinger County.

In St. Louis County, for example, local property taxes provide 72.4 per cent of the schools' money, while in Pulaski County, property taxes provide only 15.3 per cent. State and federal money pay the rest.

The highest local property tax levy is $5.96 per $100 of assessed valuation for a Belton high school district. The lowest is $2.20 in Worth.

This school year, it will take $926 million to operate the state's 3,000 schools, which serve slightly more than 1 million, including 42,000 in junior colleges.

Property taxes will provide $406 million, or 44 per cent.

A uniform levy of $3, regulated by the state tax commission, would provide $406 million, the report said.

Nearly half of the 605 districts have assessments at $3 or lower.

The federal government pays $66 million, and the rest comes from state school foundation money, fines, forfeitures, state income tax, intangible taxes, sales use taxes and the cigarette tax.

Because of a "grandfather clause" which says state aid can't be cut below a certain figure, richer districts get richer even if they don't have an unusually high assessment. That's because they have more valuable property to assess.

St. Louis County gets 24.2 per cent of its school costs paid by the state and 3.4 per cent paid from federal funds. In Pulaski County, state money provides 51.5 per cent of the support and federal, 33.2 per cent.

The subcommittee on financial sources, pointing out that 58 per cent of the state income tax goes to education, recommended eliminating federal and corporate tax deductions on state returns. That would raise $217 milliion. An increase of 1 per cent in the 3 per cent sales tax would bring in another $128 million, the report said.

The two news sources would allow less reliance upon the property tax and allow some districts to reduce assessments, the report said.

The subcommittee recommended giving a sales tax credit on the income tax. While counties should continue to collect and disburse property taxes, the subcommittee said, fines, forfeiturss and similar sources should be turned over to the state for collection and distribution.

Expenditures per pupil also vary greatly, the subcommittee on distribution of funds found. St. Louis spends an average of $1,906 per pupil from property taxes, compared with $394 in Pulaski County.

There should be a guaranteed assessed valuation per pupil, the subcommittee said, and state payments should be $600 per pupil on average daily attendance.

The state should continue to pay half the costs for building and land the report said.

The subcommittee on school district structure recommended that elementary districts with boards of six directors be eliminated. That would affect 115 districts.

Missouri ranks 10th in total districts in the nation with 695. Twenty years ago the state had 8,422 school districts.

Two districts have no schools and 155 districts operate only elementary schools, sending high school students elsewhere. And the high school students go where the tuition is less and not necessarily where the quality of education is better, the report said.

School enrollment varies widely. One high school has 4,000 students and another has only 50.

"Many are considered too large for maximum student learning and development," the report said. "Many are too small to offer a comprehensive program at a reasonable cost per pupil.

"The effort required to maintain a high school in districts with a limited number of pupils and financial resources has tended to restrict curriculum and services made available to elementary pupils."

Dowd, Bond To Share Missouri Bar Billing

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri's two gubernatorial candidates, Edward L. Dowd, St. Louis, and Christopher S. Bond, Mexico, will headline the 28th annual meeting of The Missouri Bar Oct. 11-13 at Chase- Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis.

While not in a debate, the candidates will appear together at the "Show-Me" Breakfast, outlining their positions on issues of importance and answering questions from the floor.

Some 800 Missouri lawyers and their wives are expected to attend the program which begins with preliminary activities Oct. 11, when the board of governors and the lawyers section council meet to elect new officers.

Another highlight of the day- and- a- half meeting will be a discussion Thursday by Bruce Coles, Barrister, London, England, contrasting defense procedures used in England with those in the United States.

The traditional "Show- Me" Breakfast and business meeting will be held at 8 a.m. Oct. 12. American bar Association President Robert W. Meserve, Boston, Mass., and St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes are scheduled to take part in the program.

During this session the Lon O. Hocker Awards and the President's Awards will be given. The honorary title of Senior Counsellor of The Missouri Bar will be granted to 48 attorneys who have served the legal profession in Missouri for 50 years or who have reached the age of 75.

A memorial service will be held in memory of those members of the bar who have died in the past year.

Thursday workshop sessions include discussion of a proposed new Uniform Probate Code and the vices and virtues of class actions from the viewpoint of the plaintiff, the defense and the corporation. Two concurrent panel sessions highlight the afternoon activities.

White House Labels Peace Stories 'Totally Speculative

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has left open the possibility of significant movement in the secret Vietnam negotiations over the next few weeks while labeling two current peace stories "totally speculative."

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler applied the label Friday to published reports from Saigon and London, but did not issue a flat denial. Official policy is not to comment on the private talks between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Off the record, other administration sources used stronger language to discount the stories while acknowledging that elements mentioned in them may have been involved in the secret talks in Paris.

The Saigon account, a United Press International story attributed to "informed sources," said the allies will make a new peace offer before the Nov. 7 U.S. election. The new offer, according to the account, would call for South Vietnam's president, Nguyen Van Thieu, to resign and for North Vietnam to end its infiltration of the South.

The story sent the stock market shooting upwards during the day and led Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern to say he'd "gladly sacrifice this election if we can end this war one day earlier."

The London Times pictured a broad Washington-Hanoi agreement for a settlement to take place after the election.

Nixon, who has denied that the election will influence his Vietnam negotiating terms, met Friday with Kissinger and his deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig.

Haig has just returned from conferring with Thieu and other South Vietnamese officials in Saigon. U.S. sources said Haig talked about the Paris negotiating session and, among other things, reassured Thieu that Nixon would not sacrifice the Thieu government for the sake of a quick pre-election deal with the enemy.

New Law Eliminates Poll Books

JACKSON — Cape Girardeau County apparently did not need poll books for the primary election and wouldn't have needed to order them for the general election, County Clerk Rusby C. Crites has told the county Court.

Crites said he has received notice of a new election law, which was signed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes May 2, that poll books are no longer necessary in counties that have voter registration.

There is nothing illegal about having the poll books, but it is an unnecessary expense and extra work for election officials under the new law.

The law says that in counties with voter registration, voters are to sign a registration slip and, together, these slips will constitute a poll book. In the past, voters signed the slip and a poll book was kept, too, a duplication.

The change is not a major election change, but Crites was critical of the notice of the change coming so late.

He pointed out that the county would not have had to print poll books for the August primary. Polls books have already been ordered for the November election, Crites said, and unless the order can be changed before they are printed, the county will have to pay for them.

The poll book is simply a register of who has voted in a precinct. By numbering the signed slips, the same objective can be achieved without the duplication.

Deadline Ends

BLOOMFIELD — The registration deadline for voting in the Nov. 7 general election in Stoddard county ended at noon today.

The deadline had originally been set for Monday, but the county clerk's office will be closed Monday in observance of Columbus Day.

Polecat Under House Has Lady Skunked

Dear Ann Landers: I never thought I would be writing to Ann Landers but I've run into a problem that has me skunked. The skunk's name is Pierre and he has recently taken up residence under our porch. My husband and I sort of like him, but I'm afraid one of our three cats will have it out with Pierre one of these days and heaven only knows what the outcome will be. If Pierre were to express his indignity to the limit, he could render out home uninhabitable for days.

My husband suggested that we leave some poison under the porch for 24 hours and keep the cats inside until after the "funeral." I believe it would be more humane to shoot Pierre with a rifle. Do you have a better suggestion? Pierre must go.-- Polecat Pathos

Dear P.: I don't think much of your husband's solution-- and yours is no better. Call the S.P.C.A. and ask them to come and get Pierre. They'll probably lure him into a cage, take him for a ride to the country and let him loose in a field where he can enjoy himself killing mice -- or whatever it is that skunks do.

Dear Ann Landers: Our teen- age daughter invited a girlfriend to spend a few days with us at our summer place. She was well behaved, picked up after herself and was a lovely house guest. The phone bill arrived yesterday and I see charges for two calls totalling $16. These calls were to a city where the girl's boyfriend lives.

When I asked my daughter about it she said she did not know of the calls and cannot imagine her friend doing such a thing.

The question is this: What should be done? Should my daughter ask her friend to pay the bill? If she refuses, should our daughter be made to pay? We'd like your advice.-- Crossed Wires

Dear Crossed: Your daughter should ask the girl about the calls. If she denies having made them or refuses to reimburse you, simply do not invite her again. I don't feel it is fair to make your daughter pay this bill. She shouldn't be held responsible for someone else's actions.

Dear Ann Landers: I have received three invitations to bridal showers in the last ten days from girls I have not seen in nearly a year. None of these girls were ever close friends of mine. When I was in the hospital six months ago I didn't receive a phone call, much less a card, from any of them. I find it very interesting that suddenly they think enough of me to invite me to a party.

One girl telephoned herself, which is really gross since a shower is traditionally given by the bridesmaids, or a close friend. When this girl invited me she emphasized that it was a kitchen shower and her colors are yellow and white.

What can a person say when she gets put on the spot like that? I hate to be used.-- Suddenly Popular

Dear Sud: A person can say, "Sorry-- I can't be there. But thank you for remembering me."-- and let her take it any way she wants to.

Confidnetial to The Shame of Our Nation-- When Will It End?: I agree that the penal system in the United States is a factory that manufactures criminals. If they aren't crooks when they go in, they usually are when they come out. Read Dr. Karl Menninger's book, "The Crime Of Punishment." Dr. Menninger says we must replace punitive vengeance with something better-- like rehabilitation, and I couldn't agree more.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Ger More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50c in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

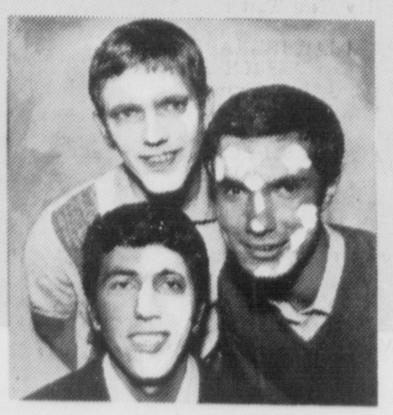
Doctor Develops Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .



QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that "blackheads and other pore "fillers" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

There is a danger that the Church must recognize and face before its eroding nature pushes the Church and her influence far into the background of America's life. The danger is not the current conservative- liberal division, nor is it the antagonism often expressed between denominations.

The danger that I see is one of attitude. People are, of course, different, and as such will hold different attitudes toward the various issues of life. In relation to the Church, however, a common attitude is emerging. This attitude is best expressed by describing it as the desire by people for the Church to reflect their views. This desire stands in opposition with the understanding that the Church exists to reflect the views of God.

We might explore some of the expressions of this emerging attitude. There exists those who want the Church to maintain religion as it was practiced in the time of the early Church or in "the good old days" of a bygone era. Others demand that the Church be a common part of everyday life using modern tunes and modes. One group wants the Church to give them comfort, peace and forgiveness but to keep her nose out of their personal lives. Another group wants the Church to be a solid unchanging rock while their counterpart requires the Church to be the leader and the catalyst of change.

Throughout the Scriptures we find the people of God performing at one time or another all of the above mentioned functions. The difference between then and now, however, is that then the people of God were responding to the Will of God. Now, unfortunately, the Church is responding to the will of people.

This change in attitude is not the exclusive property nor the fault of lay people alone. The clergy are also infected. Nor do the attacks upon the church come just from those outside the membership or from "the evil people." They come from inside the membership and from "the good people" as well.

Subtleness, human instinct and human nature make this change all the more dangerous. The Church officers who refuse to seat for worship those young men with long hair because they "are not the type who worship here" are wrong not because they dislike long hair on men, but because they are expressing their attitude of how people who worship should look. Similarly, the people who proclaim that theirs' is the only way to God are wrong because they are proclaiming their attitude and denying God his right as Creator and the King of Heaven to determine who shall approach him and how.

This danger of attitude will plague the Church until people begin to actually believe that Christ has won the victory over sin, death and life and invites us to participate, not win it for him. Such a belief requires a change of attitude on the part of Church people whereby they see the Church reflecting the will of God rather than their own will.

This time will begin to break forth when we heed closely the words of Paul to the Church at Philippi:

"So if there is any encouragement in Christ, any incentive of love, any participation in the Spirit, any affection and sympathy, complete my joy by being of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind. Do nothing from selfishness or conceit, but in humility count others better than yourselves. Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others. (Philippians 2:1-4)

What a change it would be to hear the following statement:

"Friend, we differ by a wide gulf in our opinions, but since we both desire to love and serve God, let us put aside my way and your way and together try to find God's way."

The mere act of putting aside my way and your way may allow God to speak to us.

Bearcats Near League Title

DEXTER— Coach Clyde Vaughn's Dexter High School Bearcats raced to a 42- 14 Southern Division victory over East Prairie Friday night to solidify their first place standing with only two league battles remaining.

The Bearcats raced to a 30- 0 lead in the first half before the Eagles took advantage of some DHS mistakes to score their only points in the second half.

Quarterback Don Backfish scored on runs of eight and three yards to head the Dexter touchdown parade which included a four- yard scamper by Allen Brown, a 90- yard dash by Bruce Bishop after a fumble recovery, an 85- yard runback of a kickoff by Allen Trammell and a fumble recovery by Mike McKroy, who also scored four extra points.

Steve Secoy returned a kickoff 90 yards for one East Prairie TD, while a pass play covering 41 yards accounted for the other.

Dexter dominated the game, rushing for 225 yards to EPHS's 44 and gaining 15 first downs to the Eagles eight. East Prairie outgained the Cats through the airways, 118- 38.

Coach Vaughn's gridders were issued 100 yards in penalties, while East Prairie drew 35.

Dexter visits Sikeston next week, while East Priairie will still be searching for its first victory when it visits Caruthersville.

CURTIS BEAN (20) heads upfield on a long gainer against the Kennett Indians Friday night with blockers John Farris (80) and Jesse Smith (22) leading the way. The Bulldogs offense sputtered, however, and the Indians posted a 12-7 decision.

SHS Wins All...But Game

KENNETT— Friday night the Sikeston Bulldogs outgained the Kennett Indians. They pushed their opponents all over the field. They controlled the ball most of the first three quarters and ran 68 plays to just 49 for their hosts. They out hit the Indians and had more first downs.

The only thing they didn't do, and the most important, was that they neglected to outscore their favored opponents. A blocked punt in the last two minutes gave the Indians a come- from- behind 12- 7 victory in a Northern Division clash.

The Sikeston backs had their best night of the year, or at least their most consistent. Bill Colwick had his best passing night of the season, but the offense failed to score for the second week in a row. Jesse Smith was Sikeston's leading ground-gainer. The fleet fullback, enjoying his most successful rushing night so far, ran for 77 yards on 17 carries.

His running- mate Curtis Bean advanced the ball 58 yards on 11 carries, but the running game was able to produce just 92 net yards rushing, due to the fact that the inexperienced Sikeston line is much more proficient at blocking for the runners than they are at pass blocking. Colwick was sacked nine times for 47 yards in losses, nearly all of those in passing situations.

Quarterback David Tippen proved to be Kennett's most productive runner, totaling 26 yards on a dozen carries. The Kennett ground game netted just 72 yards.

Colwick, despite the poor protection his 13 of 24 passes for 186 yards. However, turnovers were costly all night, and the two interceptions he suffered cost the Bulldogs dearly. The second ended Sikeston's desperation drive after that last minute blocked- punt score. The running attack lost the ball even more frequently in the mistake-marred contest. Runners coughed the ball up four times, nearly every one putting the Dogs in terrible field position. Tippen was not quite so accomplished in the passing department, hitting just five of 18 aerials. However, one pass went for a touchdown and none were intercepted and Kennett runners lost the ball just once on a fumble.

The first half was all Sikeston's. The Dogs marched up and down the field at will, running 36 plays to 17 for Kennett and gaining 162 yards to 66 for Kennett. However, the intermission score was nothing for both teams.

The second half saw the momentum slowly but surely swing the other way. Tippen moved his team with a sureness and confidence most likely instilled by his big, veteran offensive line. Finally, with a costly penalty keeping the drive going, the Kennett team ran the ball deep into Sikeston territory where a Sikeston defensive back zigged when he should have zagged and split end Tony Smith slipped unmolested into the end zone. Tippen's extra point attempt was wide, but Kennett led 6— 0.

Early in the fourth period, Tippen was shaken up by an enthusiastic Sikeston tackler and had to leave the game. With Tippen out and substitute quarterback Don Downing in, the Kennett attack sputtered and the hosts were forced to punt. On the kicking attempt, linebacker Roy Bowman managed to get in the way. The ball bounded crazily away and Sikeston defensive Aaron Yarber picked it up and loped 28 yards into the end zone. When Colwick kicked the point through the uprights, Sikeston had its first lead since the Charleston game two weeks ago.

The precarious one- point lead continued to stand through most of the fourth quarter. The Sikeston defense, given a much-needed rest in the game, was strong late in the contest and able to stop Kennett on drive after drive. The offense, with three fumbles in the fourth period, kept putting Sikeston defenders deep in their own territory, but they held strong.

Finally, when Kennett did score, it was not the defense, but the offense that allowed the score. Forcing Sikeston to punt on fourth down, Kennett put an all-out rush on Colwick. Tony Smith managed to block the kick, J.C. Taylor recovered the ball and ran 28 yards to paydirt.

The deliriously happy Kennett followers could hardly have cared less when the extra point kick went wide, since all the Indians had to do was hold Sikeston for just over a minute in order to claim their first win over the Big Red since 1963. When Dennis Layer intercepted his second pass of the evening with 50 seconds remaining, the Indians at last ended their iong losing streak against the Bulldogs.

Sikeston displayed its inexperience all night with costly mistakes. The Bulldogs moved the ball enough to score three or four touchdowns, but vital errors held them back, apparently much more than the Kennett defensive wall.

Late in the game and leading 7-6, Sikeston managed to put enough pressure on Tippen to make him miss three field goals attempts. Each time he kicked the ball long enough, except for the last when Greg Colwick got a hand on the ball. One of the attempts was from 54 yards out, and the boot was less than 10 yards short. The one Colwick deflected was a mere chip shot of 31 yards for Tippen, and at the time, the miss seemed to seal the Indians' doom.

The Sikeston squad is small in numbers this year, and the coaches have been terribly afraid of injuries. With the season halfway over, it seems the injury hex may have finally caught up with Sikeston in the Kennett contest.

Defensive cornerback and reserve quarterback Richard Blankenship, a very vital part of the Bulldog machinery, suffered a slight shoulder separation in the contest. Bean, Sikeston's sprinter-back missed most of the second half because of a slight ailment and Roy Yarber played his usual fine game, despite an ailment that could have kept him out of action.

The injuries, however small, could hurt the Sikeston team very much since two of the next three opponents are the Jackson Indians and the top team in Southeast Missouri and possibly the state, the Cape Central Tigers.

Next week it will be the Dexter Bearcats in the annual grudge match. Games between the two, after being dominated by the Bulldogs in the mid and late 1960s, have always been hard fought and hotly contested. The game against the tough Bearcats will be at Public School Stadium, and is a must encounter if the Bulldogs are to come up with a respectable record. The Bearcats have a four-game winning streak going, after an opening loss to imposing Jackson, and Sikeston will be trying to get back on the winning track after two straight losses.

A good point was made by a Sikeston fan after the game, "Maybe the boys weren't used to the dry field."

JACKSON — Cape Girardeau Central continued to mow down its gridiron opponents with relative ease Friday night, as the Tigers began defense of their Northern Division title with an impressive 49-6 romp over Jackson.

The battle was billed as a highlight to a big, 11-game Southeast Missouri high school grid schedule, but the outcome was well known after the first 12 minutes as the rugged Bengals rolled to a 28-6 lead.

Jackson, which had won four straight games and allowed only 12 points in doing so, found the Tiger offense too big and potent to hold back, and the Indians were quickly headed for their first defeat of the season.

Big, bruising Paul Schermann bolted across the goal line five times to run his season scoring mark to 97 points in five games and seems well on his way to establishing an individual SeMo scoring mark. The senior back bolted over from one yard out for his only easy TD of the evening, then the 190- pounder sped 94, 33 and 34 twice for his other scores.

Quarterback Bill Seabaugh got the Tigers off and running with a 22- yard TD scamper in the first quarter and wound up the Bengal scoring with a third quarter 12- yard TD aerial strike to Willie Colon. Jeff Hutton added the extra-point kicks.

Lawrence Sides scored on a 66- yard play for Jackson's only score.

Hayes Leads Mules

POPLAR BLUFF — The Poplar Bluff Mules kicked some of the spark out of the De Andreis Wildcats from St. Louis Friday night by outmanuevering the Cats to take a 20-6 win.

Both units were scoreless till the second period when J. B. Hayes carried the ball six yards to score. Sanders kicked the extra point. Hayes added a seven-yard touchdown romp in the third period to bring the score to 13-0.

Split end Raney ran 36 yards for a final period score and a 20-0 lead after the PAT by Sanders.

With 41 seconds to go, De Andreis collected its only score of the game on a pass from Riley to Suggs.

Toodie Hayes intercepted two passes for the Mules, running one back 45 yards. J. B. Hayes, with the two TD's, and Raney, who gained 46 yards on the ground, led the hard-fighting Mule offense.

The Mules travel to Cape Girardeau Central next week.

PHS Retains Title Hopes

MALDEN— Randy Williams scored two touchdowns, one on a 26-yard scamper and one from three yards out, in leading Portageville to a convincing 20- 0 romp of Malden in Southern Division play Friday night.

The small, inexperienced Green Wave unit fielded by Coach Jack Phillips failed to hold off the Bulldogs and suffered its third loss in five games.

Portageville scored with four minutes left in the first quarter and then battled to a scoreless standoff until the fourth period, when Williams bolted over from three yards out and Robbie Inman connected on a five- yard pass play to Steve Cross for the final tally. Mark Girvin kicked two of three extra point attempts.

The victory keeps the Bulldogs in the running for the Southern Division title with a 3- 1 conference mark.

Defensive cornerback and reserve quarterback Richard Blankenship, a very vital part of the Bulldog machinery, suffered a slight shoulder separation in the contest. Bean, Sikeston's sprinter-back missed most of the second half because of a slight ailment and Roy Yarber played his usual fine game, despite an ailment that could have kept him out of action.

The injuries, however small, could hurt the Sikeston team very much since two of the next three opponents are the Jackson Indians and the top team in Southeast Missouri and possibly the state, the Cape Central Tigers.

Next week it will be the Dexter Bearcats in the annual grudge match. Games between the two, after being dominated by the Bulldogs in the mid and late 1960s, have always been hard fought and hotly contested. The game against the tough Bearcats will be at Public School Stadium, and is a must encounter if the Bulldogs are to come up with a respectable record. The Bearcats have a four-game winning streak going, after an opening loss to imposing Jackson, and Sikeston will be trying to get back on the winning track after two straight losses.

A good point was made by a Sikeston fan after the game, "Maybe the boys weren't used to the dry field."

Hayes Leads Mules

POPLAR BLUFF — The Poplar Bluff Mules kicked some of the spark out of the De Andreis Wildcats from St. Louis Friday night by outmanuevering the Cats to take a 20-6 win.

Both units were scoreless till the second period when J. B. Hayes carried the ball six yards to score. Sanders kicked the extra point. Hayes added a seven-yard touchdown romp in the third period to bring the score to 13-0.

Split end Raney ran 36 yards for a final period score and a 20-0 lead after the PAT by Sanders.

With 41 seconds to go, De Andreis collected its only score of the game on a pass from Riley to Suggs.

Toodie Hayes intercepted two passes for the Mules, running one back 45 yards. J. B. Hayes, with the two TD's, and Raney, who gained 46 yards on the ground, led the hard-fighting Mule offense.

The Mules travel to Cape Girardeau Central next week.

PHS Retains Title Hopes

MALDEN— Randy Williams scored two touchdowns, one on a 26-yard scamper and one from three yards out, in leading Portageville to a convincing 20- 0 romp of Malden in Southern Division play Friday night.

The small, inexperienced Green Wave unit fielded by Coach Jack Phillips failed to hold off the Bulldogs and suffered its third loss in five games.

Portageville scored with four minutes left in the first quarter and then battled to a scoreless standoff until the fourth period, when Williams bolted over from three yards out and Robbie Inman connected on a five- yard pass play to Steve Cross for the final tally. Mark Girvin kicked two of three extra point attempts.

The victory keeps the Bulldogs in the running for the Southern Division title with a 3- 1 conference mark.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)— Ann Hollier of Opelousas, La., is the Louisiana Women's State Golf Association champion for the fourth time.

She scored an easy 8-and-7 victory over Valerie Cox of Lafayette Friday to win the 44th annual tournament for the second consecutive year. Her victory came the week after her election as president of the state women's golf association.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Coach J.D. Roberts of the New Orleans Saints said Bob Newland will start as wide receiver Sunday against the New York Giants in place of Margene Adkins, who dropped several passes in last week's game against San Francisco.

Adkins will remain on the No. 1 punt and kickoff return teams, Roberts said.

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — East Carolina University Athletic Director Claren Stasavich was reported in "poor condition" at Pitt Memorial Hospital Friday following an apparent heart attack Wednesday.

The 59-year-old Stasavich previously had suffered a heart attack during the East Carolina-Presbyterian football game in 1963 when he was ECU's football coach.

Prior to the Wednesday attack, he had complained of pains in his chest for two weeks, said assistant athletic director Bill Cain.

Weather Clouds NL Playoffs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, two teams who bullied their divisions, begin the National League playoffs today with a pair of nervous starting pitchers.

Pittsburgh's Steve Blass, an admitted nervous wreck everytime he goes to the mound, and Cincinnati's Don Gullett, too jittery to sleep well, match deliveries in Game No. 1, clouded by possible stormy weather.

There's a 40 per cent chance of rain as the Pirates begin defense of their National League title in this best-of-five-game series. Game time is 1 p.m., EDT, at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I have no control over my adrenalin," said the excitable, extroverted Blass. "It just comes naturally. You can be sure I'll be pretty nervous by game time."

Blass, however, figures to be the calmer of the two starters because of his noteworthy accomplishments in recent years. He won two games in last year's World Series success against Baltimore and had 19 victories and a fancy 2.48 earned run average this year.

The Pirate pitcher, a 30-yearold right-hander who reached baseball success relatively late, faces a young, hard-throwing marvel in Gullett.

Gullett spent a couple of months battling hepatitis this summer. He was a Pirate-killer in the 1970 playoffs at the age of 19. The baby-faced southpaw helped save the last two games as the Reds swept the Pirates in three straight in 1970.

The Pirates hit .274 as a team, 23 points better than the Reds, and Roberto Clemente was one of those largely responsible for the unusually high average.

Clemente batted .312 en route to 3,000 career hits and helped the Pirates run away with the East Division pennant. He also killed the Reds when he played against them.

While the Pittsburgh right fielder must be considered the Pirates' most valuable player along with Stargell, the Reds have a couple in catcher Johnny Bench and second baseman Joe Morgan. With Bench's NLleading 40 homers and 125 RBI and Morgan's 58 stolen bases, they give the West Division champion Reds a wafer-thin edge in power and speed.

Blass says he's particularly concerned about the Reds' first three batters—Pete Rose, Morgan and Bobby Tolan, who also gives them another sparkling runner.

"The thing that makes them so tough is that they not only have speed, but they can hit the ball out of the park," Blass said. "It isn't like you're pitching to three Punch-and-Judy hitters. They've all hit home runs off me at one time or another.

"If you let one of the first three guys get on base, it's hard to give your total concentration to Bench and Tony Perez. And that's dangerous."

Martin Counters With Lefties

OAKLAND (AP)—Billy Martin and the Detroit Tigers came here with the World Series their goal, but the Oakland Athletics and American League playoffs stand as formidable interim annoyances.

"I don't like playoffs," Martin said before today's opening game of the best-of-five baseball playoff series.

"I don't like them either," Manager Dick Williams of the favored A's said.

Both managers have taken teams to the playoffs once before. Martin's Minnesota Twins lost three straight games to Baltimore in 1969, the first year of baseball's four-division setup, and Williams' A's dropped three in a row to the Orioles last year.

"It's rough on a manager and his players to go through the season and win their division then face five games in the playoffs to make the Series," said Martin, the former infielder who played in five World Series with the New York Yankees.

Martin named left-hander Mickey Lolich, 22-14, to pitch the playoff opener but refused to announce the rest of his lineup until just before game time.

Williams, who countered with right-hander Jim "Catfish" Hunter, said, "I've announced my lineup, and naturally would be interested in knowing Billy's. But I don't need to know it until we walk out to home plate."

Veteran Al Kaline was the Tigers' leading hitter in the final, hectic days of the Eastern Division race, and Martin smiled Friday when he said, "Al's getting so old I'm afraid to put him out there."

The 37-year-old right fielder carried an 11-game hitting streak into the playoffs. He batted .353 against the A's this season, although the Tigers' team average was only .217 against the talented Oakland pitching staff.

"The key to stopping the Tigers is Lolich," Hunter said Friday. "We've got lots of lefthanded hitters, and if he's got good stuff, we'll have trouble getting runs."

Martin will use another southpaw, Woodie Fryman, in Sunday's second game against the A's lineup that includes lefthanded swingers Matty Alou, Reggie Jackson and Mike Epstein. John "Blue Moon" Odom will pitch for the A's.

Monday is a scheduled travel day and the third game will be Tuesday in Detroit.

I-SC Wins Bootheel

SCOTT CITY — Illmo-Scott City's Rams encored with their touted defense and rolling offense to demolish the South Pemiscot Bulldogs 47-0 in a Friday night outing that clinched the Bootheel title.

Fullback Danny Holder ignited the rally in the first quarter, scampering one yard for the touchdown. Glen Ward kicked the extra point.

Halfback Rondal Morgan grabbed a 10-yard TD pass from Rich Baker to start things rolling in the second period. Randy Bone blocked a punt by the Bulldogs, also in the second quarter, and completed a four-yard run to score.

Holder unleashed a 65-yard touchdown romp after the half, with Ward adding the extra point. Morgan scored on a 23-yard run in the same period and Ward again kicked the extra point.

Randy Bone and Tim Johnston ran for four and three yard touchdowns respectively in the final period. Both conversion kicks were good by Ward.

Vince Schaffer led the Rams with 11 tackles.

Tribe Topples Devils

HAYTI -- Hayti's Indians came out on top against Chaffee in a home game Friday night, 12-6. The only score of the first half came in the second quarter when Jim Dooley hit Tim Glasstetter on a 33- yard pass play to make the score 6-0 as Chaffee's try for a two- point conversion failed.

Hayti came alive in the third quarter and moved the ball 80 yards, as Randy Gardner tied the score on a nine- yard touchdown run. With seven minutes to go Hayti mounted a 67- yard drive with Gardner taking the ball in from the two to make the final score Hayti 12, Chaffee 6.

Outstanding defensive players for Hayti were Jerome Maxee, Dennis Sharp and Mark Dawson.

Next week the Indians face Malden at Malden.

Pirates Score Win

HERCULANEUM -- The wet weather in Jefferson County didn't seem to bother the Perryville Pirates as they romped over Herculaneum by a score of 18-0 Friday night.

Paul Clifton scored on a three- yard run to give the Pirates a 6-0 edge in the first quarter. Richard Kramer followed with a 15- yard run to make the score 12-0. In the second quarter, Kramer again scored, this time on a nine- yard run, giving Perryville an 18-0 halftime lead.

A defensive struggle in the second half saw both teams remain scoreless. The highlight of the game was Perryville's storng defense. Herculaneum had the ball three times inside the Pirate 30-yard line but the defense held.

Kramer gained 80 yards in 23 carries and Clifton came up with 27 yards in 10 carries.

Perryville will go up against the Kennett Indians in two weeks.

Weather Clouds NL Playoffs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, two teams who bullied their divisions, begin the National League playoffs today with a pair of nervous starting pitchers.

Pittsburgh's Steve Blass, an admitted nervous wreck everytime he goes to the mound, and Cincinnati's Don Gullett, too jittery to sleep well, match deliveries in Game No. 1, clouded by possible stormy weather.

There's a 40 per cent chance of rain as the Pirates begin defense of their National League title in this best-of-five-game series. Game time is 1 p.m., EDT, at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I have no control over my adrenalin," said the excitable, extroverted Blass. "It just comes naturally. You can be sure I'll be pretty nervous by game time."

Blass, however, figures to be the calmer of the two starters because of his noteworthy accomplishments in recent years. He won two games in last year's World Series success against Baltimore and had 19 victories and a fancy 2.48 earned run average this year.

The Pirate pitcher, a 30-yearold right-hander who reached baseball success relatively late, faces a young, hard-throwing marvel in Gullett.

Gullett spent a couple of months battling hepatitis this summer. He was a Pirate-killer in the 1970 playoffs at the age of 19. The baby-faced southpaw helped save the last two games as the Reds swept the Pirates in three straight in 1970.

The Pirates hit .274 as a team, 23 points better than the Reds, and Roberto Clemente was one of those largely responsible for the unusually high average.

Clemente batted .312 en route to 3,000 career hits and helped the Pirates run away with the East Division pennant. He also killed the Reds when he played against them.

While the Pittsburgh right fielder must be considered the Pirates' most valuable player along with Stargell, the Reds have a couple in catcher Johnny Bench and second baseman Joe Morgan. With Bench's NLleading 40 homers and 125 RBI and Morgan's 58 stolen bases, they give the West Division champion Reds a wafer-thin edge in power and speed.

Blass says he's particularly concerned about the Reds' first three batters—Pete Rose, Morgan and Bobby Tolan, who also gives them another sparkling runner.

"The thing that makes them so tough is that they not only have speed, but they can hit the ball out of the park," Blass said. "It isn't like you're pitching to three Punch-and-Judy hitters. They've all hit home runs off me at one time or another.

"If you let one of the first three guys get on base, it's hard to give your total concentration to Bench and Tony Perez. And that's dangerous."

Martin Counters With Lefties

OAKLAND (AP)—Billy Martin and the Detroit Tigers came here with the World Series their goal, but the Oakland Athletics and American League playoffs stand as formidable interim annoyances.

"I don't like playoffs," Martin said before today's opening game of the best-of-five baseball playoff series.

"I don't like them either," Manager Dick Williams of the favored A's said.

Both managers have taken teams to the playoffs once before. Martin's Minnesota Twins lost three straight games to Baltimore in 1969, the first year of baseball's four-division setup, and Williams' A's dropped three in a row to the Orioles last year.

"It's rough on a manager and his players to go through the season and win their division then face five games in the playoffs to make the Series," said Martin, the former infielder who played in five World Series with the New York Yankees.

Martin named left-hander Mickey Lolich, 22-14, to pitch the playoff opener but refused to announce the rest of his lineup until just before game time.

Williams, who countered with right-hander Jim "Catfish" Hunter, said, "I've announced my lineup, and naturally would be interested in knowing Billy's. But I don't need to know it until we walk out to home plate."

Veteran Al Kaline was the Tigers' leading hitter in the final, hectic days of the Eastern Division race, and Martin smiled Friday when he said, "Al's getting so old I'm afraid to put him out there."

The 37-year-old right fielder carried an 11-game hitting streak into the playoffs. He batted .353 against the A's this season, although the Tigers' team average was only .217 against the talented Oakland pitching staff.

"The key to stopping the Tigers is Lolich," Hunter said Friday. "We've got lots of lefthanded hitters, and if he's got good stuff, we'll have trouble getting runs."

Martin will use another southpaw, Woodie Fryman, in Sunday's second game against the A's lineup that includes lefthanded swingers Matty Alou, Reggie Jackson and Mike Epstein. John "Blue Moon" Odom will pitch for the A's.

Monday is a scheduled travel day and the third game will be Tuesday in Detroit.

A survey made at Atlantic City showed that 24 per cent of all men who attend conventions there take along their wives.

I-SC Wins Bootheel

SCOTT CITY — Illmo-Scott City's Rams encored with their touted defense and rolling offense to demolish the South Pemiscot Bulldogs 47-0 in a Friday night outing that clinched the Bootheel title.

Fullback Danny Holder ignited the rally in the first quarter, scampering one yard for the touchdown. Glen Ward kicked the extra point.

Halfback Rondal Morgan grabbed a 10-yard TD pass from Rich Baker to start things rolling in the second period. Randy Bone blocked a punt by the Bulldogs, also in the second quarter, and completed a four-yard run to score.

Holder unleashed a 65-yard touchdown romp after the half, with Ward adding the extra point. Morgan scored on a 23-yard run in the same period and Ward again kicked the extra point.

Randy Bone and Tim Johnston ran for four and three yard touchdowns respectively in the final period. Both conversion kicks were good by Ward.

Vince Schaffer led the Rams with 11 tackles.

Tribe Topples Devils

HAYTI -- Hayti's Indians came out on top against Chaffee in a home game Friday night, 12-6. The only score of the first half came in the second quarter when Jim Dooley hit Tim Glasstetter on a 33- yard pass play to make the score 6-0 as Chaffee's try for a two- point conversion failed.

Hayti came alive in the third quarter and moved the ball 80 yards, as Randy Gardner tied the score on a nine- yard touchdown run. With seven minutes to go Hayti mounted a 67- yard drive with Gardner taking the ball in from the two to make the final score Hayti 12, Chaffee 6.

Outstanding defensive players for Hayti were Jerome Maxee, Dennis Sharp and Mark Dawson.

Next week the Indians face Malden at Malden.

Pirates Score Win

HERCULANEUM -- The wet weather in Jefferson County didn't seem to bother the Perryville Pirates as they romped over Herculaneum by a score of 18-0 Friday night.

Paul Clifton scored on a three- yard run to give the Pirates a 6-0 edge in the first quarter. Richard Kramer followed with a 15- yard run to make the score 12-0. In the second quarter, Kramer again scored, this time on a nine- yard run, giving Perryville an 18-0 halftime lead.

A defensive struggle in the second half saw both teams remain scoreless. The highlight of the game was Perryville's storng defense. Herculaneum had the ball three times inside the Pirate 30-yard line but the defense held.

Kramer gained 80 yards in 23 carries and Clifton came up with 27 yards in 10 carries.

Perryville will go up against the Kennett Indians in two weeks.

Experimental Tests Drop Weevils To 10 Per Acre

PRENTISS -- Officials of Cotton Incorporated got good news as they took a first-hand look at the pilot boll weevil eredication experiment at the beginning of the cotton harvest in the Mid-South.

Samplings from the core area of 3,300 cotton acres centered in this southern Mississippi town showed less than 10 weevils per acre, following the eighth application of selective insecticide in the reproductive-diapause phase of the experiment.

"The low count is very encouraging," said Dr. George Slater, manager of entomology research for Cotton Incorporated, the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by America's cotton growers through their dollar-per-bale program.

Slater led a guided tour of the eradication site for Cotton Incorporated's president and chief executive officer, J. Dukes Wooters Jr. of New York, the company's director of research, S. Frank Moore of Raleigh, N.C., and 11 members of the board of directors from seven states.

The pilot boll weevil eradication experiment represents an investment of over $1 million by Cotton Incorporated, making it the largest agricultural research project supported by producer funds.

Slater said the weevil samples that yielded the 10 per-acre count were taken from fields of the most luscious cotton in the core zone.

"It is reasonable to conclude that, with a count of 10 in the cotton most attractive to the weevil, even lower counts are present in typical cotton fields," Slater said.

Many of the visitors got their first look at examples of myriad practical problems facing scientists in charge of the experiment. A demonstration in a three-acre field with a power line over it revealed typical difficulties in applying insecticides by airplane.

Other highlights of the tour included a view of the electonic data gathering system at the area manager's headquarters at Prentiss, a look at various methods of applying insecticides other than by airplane, and demonstrations of equipment being used in the experiment, such as mist blowers, high clearance mist applicators, mechanical bug catchers, and pheromone traps.

Providing narration to the visitors were Farrell Boyd of USDA's APHIS, the eradication area manager at Prentiss; Dr. Ed Lloyd and Dr. Dick Hardee of the Boll Weevil Research Laboratory, State College, Miss.; Dr. Fowden Maxwell, chairman of the department of entomology at Mississippi State University, and Dr. Chris Shannak of the MSU entomology faculty; and Dr. H. C. Mitchell of the Mississippi State Agricultural Extension Service.

Members of the Cotton Incorporated board of directors who made the trip were Minor Gray of Scott, Miss.; Dr. C. R. Sayre of Greenwood, Miss.; W. C. Farmers Can Expect Normal Temperatures Greater Rainfall

By LEONARD F. HAND

PORTAGEVILLE — Weather trends anticipated by the extended outlook for October suggest near normal temperature averages for the Bootheel, but above normal rainfall.

Cold air moving southward through the Great Plains will penetrate the region to bring chilly nights and mild, sunny days much of the time. A return flow of southerly winds should temper this chill sufficiently to maintain a temperature average near normal for the month as a whole.

Cool and warm air are likely to meet at times along a corridor extending from the southern plains to the Great Lakes Region. This crosses the Bootheel and gives Southeast Missouri an above-normal rainfall potential for the month. The amount of water contributed by showers attending cold fronts will depend upon the water contributed by showers attending cold fronts will depend upon the opportunity for southerly winds to restore moisture between frontal passages.

The more serious delays in field work could come with slow-moving fronts that maintain longer duration of cloudy and showery weather. The extended outlooks issued each day offer farmers an excellent guide for anticipating the character of each wetting period.

Wet soils were already a problem in many sections of the Bootheel following late September rains. Most serious threats to cotton harvest in October are posed by the possibility that rains will again render soils too muddy for pickers to enter fields. Drying of soils is slowed considerably this time of year, and cotton will be taking little or no moisture out of the ground.

Abundant soil moisture will also contribute to delays on a daily basis. Cool and calm nights certain to bring on moderate to heavy dews. These are more likely to form near dusk and remain on the cotton through mid to late forenoon when soils are wet. Farmers may want to watch agricultural advisories closely to take advantage of those rare occasions when cloudy skies and brisk winds inhibit dew and permit pickers to operate during the night.

Soybean harvest will also be subject to delays due to wet weather. Wet soils provide a ready source of moisture to toughen pods during the night. Drying trends described for cotton apply as well to soybeans Farmers have reported rising grain moisture for several days following rains in some years. This was also found in a field study, and is linked with the transfer of moisture from soils to plants, which apparently continues even with favorable daytime drying.

Temperatures will have to be watched more closely for their effect upon defoliant effectiveness, now that cool air is in the picture.

Joe Walters, agricultural observer at Delta Research Center, reported the first frost of the season shortly after daybreak Oct. 1. This was on hybrid Bermuda with a thick sod that insulates the grass from sub-soil warmth. Frost occurred at ground level, and not on nearby standing crops, with a shelter temperature of 42 degrees.

Normal dates for first freeze (shelter temperature 28-32 degrees) in the Bootheel range from about Oct. 20 in the north to Nov. 4 across the southern fringe. For moderate killing freeze (shelter readings 24 to 28 degrees) dates are Oct. 30 to the north and Nov. 20 in the south.

Livestock producers are reminded that Sudan, Sudan crosses and sorghum used for forage may contain toxic levels of prussic acid following first frost. Should any question arise, check with your extension agronomy specialist.

Time required to firm up fields following rain is more difficult to determine once crops coat out. Reports from farmers, including rainfall and dates of re-entry onto medium and heavy soils, would help us to develop a prediction capability that takes into account the effects of weather trends.

On soybean ground, the potential consumptive use of water during October by crops still actively growing is computed as follows:

Potential Water Use full season and wheat beans for weeks ending Oct. 3 — .77 - 1.00-1.35 inches; Oct. 10 — .66 and .83-1.25 inches; Oct. 17 — .56 and .67-1.09 inches; Oct. 24, .47 and .53-0.91 inches; Oct. 31, .37 and .44-0.73 inches. Total, 2.83 and 3.47-5.33 inches.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole during October is 3.12 inches.

Normal for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau, 3.07 inches; Dexter, 3.25; Fisk, 3.01; New Madrid, 3.07; Poplar Bluff, 3.26; Caruthersville, 3.13; Doniphan, 3.48; Morehouse, 3.15; Parma, 2.78; and Sikeston, 3.00.

Short term averages for other points: Advance, 3.06 inches, Bloomfield, 3.24; Clearwater Dajm, 3.13; Malden, 3.13; Puxico, 2.72; Wappapello Dam, 3.25; Bernie, 2.83; Charleston, 2.96; Kennett, 2.96; and Portageville, 2.39.

Long term records show that for months with above normal rainfall, average totals for October were 5.62 inches at Poplar Bluff, 5.70 at Sikeston and 5.22 inches at Caruthersville. Under these conditions, totals have ranged from 3.33 to 11.02 inches at Poplar Bluff, 3.33 to 12.02 inches at Sikeston and from 3.28 to 11.36 inches at Caruthersville

Starting the month of October, soils were generally amply supplied to carry the balance of the soybean crop. Many fields are too soft for entry of cotton pickers following end-of-September rains. Agricultural weather stations showed the following totals for September rainfall: Portageville, 2.92 inches; Malden, 4.81; Poplar Bluff, 10.21; Sikeston, 5.40; Kennett, 4.02; Charleston, 5.31.

October is normally the month with the lowest rainfall totals for the Bootheel as a whole. Amounts usually expected, by weeks are: Oct. 3, 0.59 inch; Oct. 10, 0.58; Oct. 17, 0.30; Oct. 24, 1.06; and Oct. 31, 0.91

Missouri Is Eliminating Brucellosis

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri cattle and swine should be completely free of brucellosis within two years or less, Dr. George C. Stiles predicted today.

Stiles, director of animal health for the State Department of Agriculture, said the latest report showed only 45 herds in the state ewith any confirmed evidence of brucellosis, a bact t nfection which causes undulant fever in human beings.

Missouri ranks second only to Texas in cattle produced and Stiles noted the latest Texas report showed 3,000 herds quarantined there.

He said rule changes which will become effective Dec. 1, calling for stricter inspection and controls, should hasten the time when Missouri can be declared free of brucellosis.

H said there was no justification for recent rumors of infected deer in a northern Missouri County.

"No deer samples have been receiced by the veterinary laboratory for over a year," he said, "and there have been no deer reactor confirmations at this date."

You can be late for work even if you're on time.

A 16— POUND New Guinea bean, 44 inches long and nearly 20 inches in circumference, was grown by Harry Still, 1337 Mill St., New Madrid. The edible bean, reportedly named for its origin, developed to this size within a month on a vine similar to a cucumber or pumpkin which was entwined to the top of a 14-foot cedar tree. The bean is prepared and cooked in the same manner as fried squash.

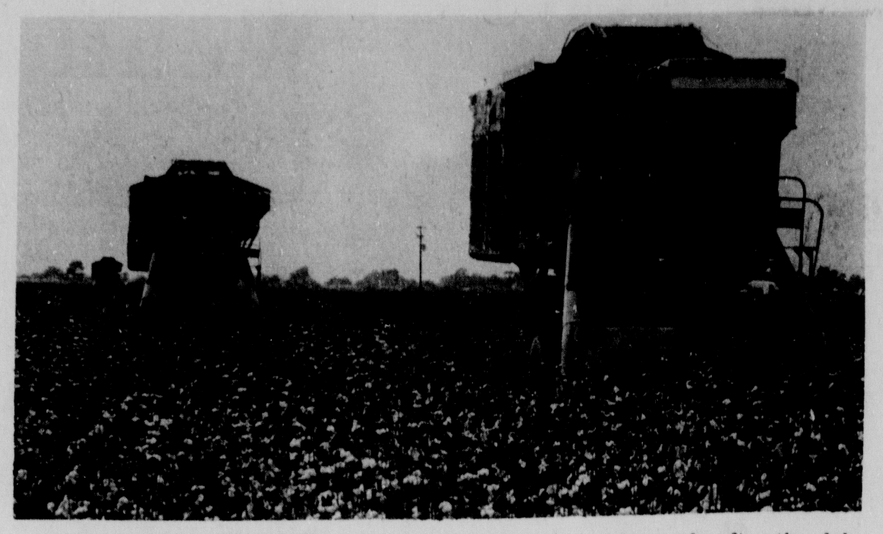
Soybeans And Seedgrains Sold Together In Stoddard

DEXTER— The Stoddard County National Farmers Organization chairman, W.L. Conner of Parma Route One, reported Thursday night that soybeans and seedgrains are being blocked together for sale in Stoddard County and encouraged members to attend meetings and support the organization in every way possible.

Leo Dickey, NFO director for Missouri, was present at the meeting and brought members up to date on programs of the NFO nationwide. He also announced a special meeting to be held at the Hickory House Restuarant Monday at 7:30 p.m.



PICKING OF THE 1972 cotton harvest resumed this week after the delay caused by last week's rains. From left, Mike Burns, Manuel Gillian and Gene Peridore, all of Matthews, swung into action on the C. D. Matthews farm one mile east of Matthews. The land is farmed by Woodrow Beck, and Beck and Plunk Picking Co., which employs the three men, is handling the harvest.

Cotton Harvesting Resumes After Wet Interruption

Cotton harvesting in Southeast Missouri was at a standstill by the end of last week, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Hayti Classing.

However, warmer and dryer weather this week allowed farmers in the lower Bootheel counties to roll their cotton pickers.

Cotton picking last week was interrupted almost daily by intermittent rain showers. By the weekend, rains had stopped all harvesting. A few gins that had started the week with sizable backlogs of seed cotton were able to clear their ginyards.

Farming and ginning operations picked up considerably this week in the lower Bootheel counties, but activity in the Scott County area remained light.

Although a large portion of current ginnings continued to be delivered on contracts prior to the active ginning season, farmers sold a small volume of cotton at prices ranging from 400 to 500 points above CCC loan rates.

Most gins in the active harvesting areas were ginning for cottonseed plus an additional charge of $5 to $6 per bale.

The Agricultural Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office had classed a total of 36,000 samples for producers for the season through Sept. 29. Strict low middling accounted for 49 per cent of the samples classed last week. Middling was the next highest at 18 per cent. Staple length remained equally divided between 1-1-16 and 1-3-32 inches.

Ninety-five per cent of the samples miked in the base range of 3.5 to 4.9. Breaking strength of the samples tested was slightly lower than the previous week and averaged 84,000 pounds per square inch.

Farmers Can Expect Normal Temperatures Greater Rainfall

By LEONARD F. HAND

PORTAGEVILLE — Weather trends anticipated by the extended outlook for October suggest near normal temperature averages for the Bootheel, but above normal rainfall.

Cold air moving southward through the Great Plains will penetrate the region to bring chilly nights and mild, sunny days much of the time. A return flow of southerly winds should temper this chill sufficiently to maintain a temperature average near normal for the month as a whole.

Cool and warm air are likely to meet at times along a corridor extending from the southern plains to the Great Lakes Region. This crosses the Bootheel and gives Southeast Missouri an above-normal rainfall potential for the month. The amount of water contributed by showers attending cold fronts will depend upon the water contributed by showers attending cold fronts will depend upon the opportunity for southerly winds to restore moisture between frontal passages.

The more serious delays in field work could come with slow-moving fronts that maintain longer duration of cloudy and showery weather. The extended outlooks issued each day offer farmers an excellent guide for anticipating the character of each wetting period.

Wet soils were already a problem in many sections of the Bootheel following late September rains. Most serious threats to cotton harvest in October are posed by the possibility that rains will again render soils too muddy for pickers to enter fields. Drying of soils is slowed considerably this time of year, and cotton will be taking little or no moisture out of the ground.

Abundant soil moisture will also contribute to delays on a daily basis. Cool and calm nights certain to bring on moderate to heavy dews. These are more likely to form near dusk and remain on the cotton through mid to late forenoon when soils are wet. Farmers may want to watch agricultural advisories closely to take advantage of those rare occasions when cloudy skies and brisk winds inhibit dew and permit pickers to operate during the night.

Soybean harvest will also be subject to delays due to wet weather. Wet soils provide a ready source of moisture to toughen pods during the night. Drying trends described for cotton apply as well to soybeans Farmers have reported rising grain moisture for several days following rains in some years. This was also found in a field study, and is linked with the transfer of moisture from soils to plants, which apparently continues even with favorable daytime drying.

Temperatures will have to be watched more closely for their effect upon defoliant effectiveness, now that cool air is in the picture.

Joe Walters, agricultural observer at Delta Research Center, reported the first frost of the season shortly after daybreak Oct. 1. This was on hybrid Bermuda with a thick sod that insulates the grass from sub-soil warmth. Frost occurred at ground level, and not on nearby standing crops, with a shelter temperature of 42 degrees.

Normal dates for first freeze (shelter temperature 28-32 degrees) in the Bootheel range from about Oct. 20 in the north to Nov. 4 across the southern fringe. For moderate killing freeze (shelter readings 24 to 28 degrees) dates are Oct. 30 to the north and Nov. 20 in the south.

Livestock producers are reminded that Sudan, Sudan crosses and sorghum used for forage may contain toxic levels of prussic acid following first frost. Should any question arise, check with your extension agronomy specialist.

Time required to firm up fields following rain is more difficult to determine once crops cout out. Reports from farmers, including rainfall and dates of re-entry onto medium and heavy soils, would help us to develop a prediction capability that takes into account the effects of weather trends.

On soybean ground, the potential consumptive use of water during October by crops still actively growing is computed as follows:

Potential Water Use full season and wheat beans for weeks ending Oct. 3 — .77 - 1.00-1.35 inches; Oct. 10 — .66 and .83-1.25 inches; Oct. 17 — .56 and .67-1.09 inches; Oct. 24, .47 and .53-0.91 inches; Oct. 31, .37 and .44-0.73 inches. Total, 2.83 and 3.47-5.33 inches.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole during October is 3.12 inches.

Normal for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau, 3.07 inches; Dexter, 3.25; Fisk, 3.01; New Madrid, 3.07; Poplar Bluff, 3.26; Caruthersville, 3.13; Doniphan, 3.48; Morehouse, 3.15; Parma, 2.78; and Sikeston, 3.00.

Short term averages for other points: Advance, 3.06 inches, Bloomfield, 3.24; Clearwater Dajm, 3.13; Malden, 3.13; Puxico, 2.72; Wappapello Dam, 3.25; Bernie, 2.83; Charleston, 2.96; Kennett, 2.96; and Portageville, 2.39.

Long term records show that for months with above normal rainfall, average totals for October were 5.62 inches at Poplar Bluff, 5.70 at Sikeston and 5.22 inches at Caruthersville. Under these conditions, totals have ranged from 3.33 to 11.02 inches at Poplar Bluff, 3.33 to 12.02 inches at Sikeston and from 3.28 to 11.36 inches at Caruthersville

Starting the month of October, soils were generally amply supplied to carry the balance of the soybean crop. Many fields are too soft for entry of cotton pickers following end-of-September rains. Agricultural weather stations showed the following totals for September rainfall: Portageville, 2.92 inches; Malden, 4.81; Poplar Bluff, 10.21; Sikeston, 5.40; Kennett, 4.02; Charleston, 5.31.

October is normally the month with the lowest rainfall totals for the Bootheel as a whole. Amounts usually expected, by weeks are: Oct. 3, 0.59 inch; Oct. 10, 0.58; Oct. 17, 0.30; Oct. 24, 1.06; and Oct. 31, 0.91

Missouri Is Eliminating Brucellosis

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri cattle and swine should be completely free of brucellosis within two years or less, Dr. George C. Stiles predicted today.

Stiles, director of animal health for the State Department of Agriculture, said the latest report showed only 45 herds in the state ewith any confirmed evidence of brucellosis, a bact t nfection which causes undulant fever in human beings.

Missouri ranks second only to Texas in cattle produced and Stiles noted the latest Texas report showed 3,000 herds quarantined there.

He said rule changes which will become effective Dec. 1, calling for stricter inspection and controls, should hasten the time when Missouri can be declared free of brucellosis.

H said there was no justification for recent rumors of infected deer in a northern Missouri County.

"No deer samples have been receiced by the veterinary laboratory for over a year," he said, "and there have been no deer reactor confirmations at this date."

Farm Co-Op Meeting Set For Oct. 14

HAYTI— The annual meeting of the Bootheel Agriculture Services Incorporated Cooperative will be held Oct. 14, at the BASIC offices south of Hayti.

The program will include registration at 10 a.m., a luncheon for members, an afternoon tour of the cooperative's farm and a social hour Satruday evening.

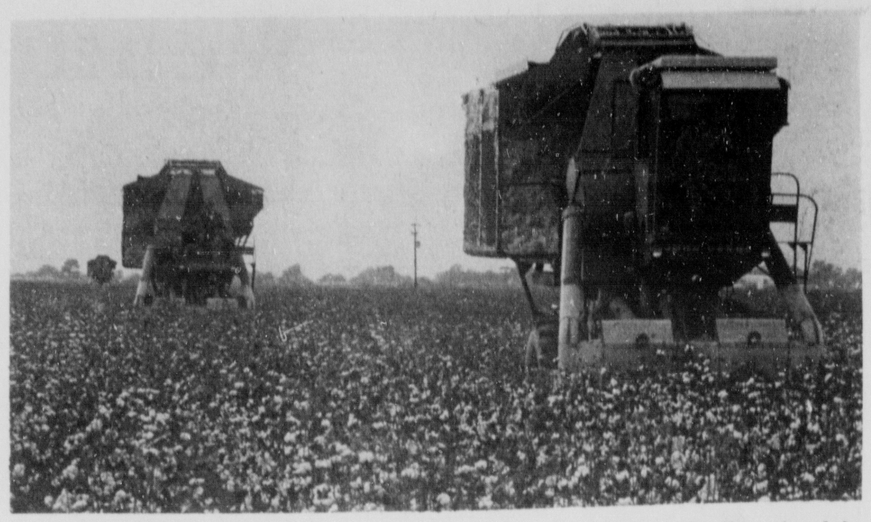
Participating in the program will be J.W. Shavers, BASIC manager; David Humes, Hayti; and Mrs. Helen Boswell, Steele. This will be the third annual meeting for the Pemiscot farm cooperative.

A 16— POUND New Guinea bean, 44 inches long and nearly 20 inches in circumference, was grown by Harry Still, 1337 Mill St., New Madrid. The edible bean, reportedly named for its origin, developed to this size within a month on a vine similar to a cucumber or pumpkin which was entwined to the top of a 14-foot cedar tree. The bean is prepared and cooked in the same manner as fried squash.

Soybeans And Seedgrains Sold Together In Stoddard

DEXTER— The Stoddard County National Farmers Organization chairman, W.L. Conner of Parma Route One, reported Thursday night that soybeans and seedgrains are being blocked together for sale in Stoddard County and encouraged members to attend meetings and support the organization in every way possible.

Leo Dickey, NFO director for Missouri, was present at the meeting and brought members up to date on programs of the NFO nationwide. He also announced a special meeting to be held at the Hickory House Restuarant Monday at 7:30 p.m.



PICKING OF THE 1972 cotton harvest resumed this week after the delay caused by last week's rains. From left, Mike Burns, Manuel Gillian and Gene Peridore, all of Matthews, swung into action on the C. D. Matthews farm one mile east of Matthews. The land is farmed by Woodrow Beck, and Beck and Plunk Picking Co., which employs the three men, is handling the harvest.

Cotton Harvesting Resumes After Wet Interruption

Cotton harvesting in Southeast Missouri was at a standstill by the end of last week, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Hayti Classing.

However, warmer and dryer weather this week allowed farmers in the lower Bootheel counties to roll their cotton pickers.

Cotton picking last week was interrupted almost daily by intermittent rain showers. By the weekend, rains had stopped all harvesting. A few gins that had started the week with sizable backlogs of seed cotton were able to clear their ginyards.

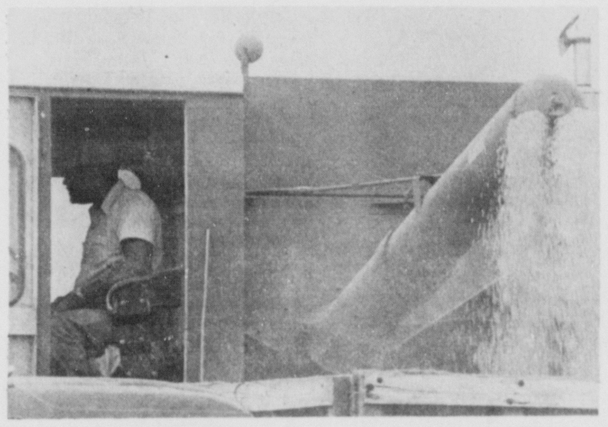
Farming and ginning operations picked up considerably this week in the lower Bootheel counties, but activity in the Scott County area remained light.

Although a large portion of current ginnings continued to be delivered on contracts prior to the active ginning season, farmers sold a small volume of cotton at prices ranging from 400 to 500 points above CCC loan rates.

Most gins in the active harvesting areas were ginning for cottonseed plus an additional charge of $5 to $6 per bale.

The Agricultural Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office had classed a total of 36,000 samples for producers for the season through Sept. 29. Strict low middling accounted for 49 per cent of the samples classed last week. Middling was the next highest at 18 per cent. Staple length remained equally divided between 1-1-16 and 1-3-32 inches.

Ninety-five per cent of the samples miked in the base range of 3.5 to 4.9. Breaking strength of the samples tested was slightly lower than the previous week and averaged 84,000 pounds per square inch.



OLLIE BARNHILL of Matthews handles the harvesting assignment of early soybeans on the James Hodge farm four miles north of New Madrid.

The specially designed ripper tine penetrates the plow pan to crack the soil ahead of the shank. The Ripper-Hipper pulls much easier than straight tine sub-soilers because this penetration "bubbles up" the soil in front of the shank. Twice the number of acres can be covered with the Ripper-Hipper and you bed up your land as you go.
The depth of the ripper tine and the pitch angle and depth of the hipper is quickly and easily adjusted. Subsoil down the center of seed beds. Shattering and cracking the plow pan aerates the soil. Loose soil under the seed bed absorbs and retains moisture. Young plants establish good root systems early to withstand droughts. Compaction is eliminated. Small Things Make Life Worth Living

Is it so small a thing
To have enjoyed the sun,
To have lived light in the spring,
To have loved,
To have thought,
To have done?

. . . Matthew Arnold

Too often we overlook those things we label trivial, which are in truth the greatest gifts of God.

How seldom we think of the wonders of a single day that begins and ends magnificently with banners of color across the sky. In one day we can experience the miracle of life for ourselves and make life a joyful experience for someone else.

During a day a thousand smiles can be aimed at someone's heart, and the accompaniment of a few kind words can reproduce your smile upon another's face.

Twenty- four hours pass quickly, but the joy shared during that time forms a golden memory that can last forever.

"I thank You, God, for most this amazing day . . ." wrote E. E. Cummings, and he went on to say that he had reawakened and realized the glory in a day.

Our true gratitude is reflected by our actions, so let us smile genuinely at more faces, look and really see the world around us as we live each amazing day to the fullest!

Students Take Active 'Stand' In Politics

AS EVERYONE KNOWS, November is the big showdown between the elephant and the donkey. Candidates are out shaking hands, friends "discuss" the issues and the men running, and campaign literature, buttons, and bumper strips deluge the public.

This is a year of different type of politics. The young people are the driving force on the national and local scene.

Youth between the ages of 18 and 24 will be voting in a national election for the first time, but the involvement doesn't stop there. People younger than 18 years of age are also out working to influence the vote of their friends as well as their parents' friends.

These concerned teen- agers realize that they too are influenced by who the political leaders will be. They know that the best choice must be made, or everyone will suffer.

Every young worker has specific reasons based on known facts for working for the man for whom he has chosen to campaign.

The young people of today are against straight-ticket voting and strong- party ties. They care only for the issues and if the candidates stand for honesty and good government. Good government rests in the hands of the good people who strive for fairness and honesty.

Political campaigning can be a great deal of work, but no job could be more fun or more rewarding if done right. The excitement of meeting and talking to the candidates and working with other young people fills one's mind with pleasant memories and pleasing self- satisfaction.

-- David Ziegenhorn

Political Influence Is Available To All

SENIORS OF TODAY will be the leaders of tomorrow, but leaders of what? Will they be leaders of a world where human suffering is prevalent, where wars destroy the homelands of many, and pollution destroys the homelands of all?

Will they be leaders of a world where diseases are conquered, where wars do not destroy lands, where people at least try to get along and preserve the earth as well as each other?

This power is at the finger tips of each individual of voting age. People can vote to preserve the lands from super– industrialization and from litter and pollution.

Voters can protect the wildlife and the country.

The more ambitious few can enter the realm of politics. Legislators can make the laws, expressing the feelings of the people. Statesmen and diplomats can influence the world for peace.

Remember, all the students in high school will soon be in the world on their own. It will be a world handed down by their elders and subject to change by the voters.

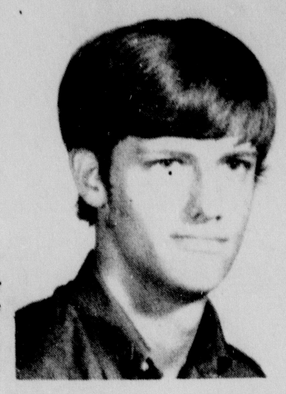
Bulldog Spotlight



This week's spotlight falls on Bulldog number 81, Dennie Breedlove. He is the Bulldogs' first string defensive end.

When not on the field, practicing or playing, he works from 8-10 in the morning and after football practice in the afternoons.

He is enrolled in a new course, bachelor living, and also attends distributive education, contemporary history, and physical education.

He resides at 314 Kinder Street with his brother, Mark, and his sister- in- law.

When asked what he liked about football, he replied, "I like the contact on the field."

A great obstacle to happiness is the expectation of too great happiness.

Growler Staff To Add New Feature:

Growler staff plans to add a new feature to the senior section of the yearbook this year.

When seniors turn in their glossy print from a studio, they are requested to turn in an identified sheet of paper with a brief inscription or quote. This sentence or phrase will appear with that senior's picture in the yearbook.

Purpose of the inscription is to reflect each person's thoughts, opinions, or personality in a way that seems very small but will enrich the memories of the yearbook in years to come.

Any questions concerning this writing should be directed to Patty Lee, Cheryl Presley, or Mrs. Tony Statler.

Students are reminded that any unacceptable quote will not be used, and another will be chosen in its place by the staff. Seniors' cooperation is requested in the selection and promptness in meeting the deadline of Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Demonstrations CanBe Peacefully Conducted

UNITED STATES is having problems with the present generation, the thinking youth of today. They are seeking to change some of the aspects of the nation, and trying to find themselves in society. They are trying to do this in various ways -- some peaceful; some not so peaceful.

A peaceful way is youth delegations to Washington, the dean's office, wherever the need arises for some kind of change.

A troublesome way is the student protests that are sweeping the nation in most of the colleges and some high schools.

Most of these demonstrations, as they are called, start out peacefully but sometimes end in riot, arrests, and sometimes bloodshed.

Two of the main causes of disruption of a peaceful protest are police interference and radical- minded young people.

We think these kind of disruptions should be dealt with immediately. We believe more stress should be put on the delegations because more seems to be accomplished through peaceful means.

Small Things Make Life Worth Living

Is it so small a thing
To have enjoyed the sun,
To have lived light in the spring,
To have loved,
To have thought,
To have done?

. . . Matthew Arnold

Too often we overlook those things we label trivial, which are in truth the greatest gifts of God.

How seldom we think of the wonders of a single day that begins and ends magnificently with banners of color across the sky. In one day we can experience the miracle of life for ourselves and make life a joyful experience for someone else.

During a day a thousand smiles can be aimed at someone's heart, and the accompaniment of a few kind words can reproduce your smile upon another's face.

Twenty- four hours pass quickly, but the joy shared during that time forms a golden memory that can last forever.

"I thank You, God, for most this amazing day . . ." wrote E. E. Cummings, and he went on to say that he had reawakened and realized the glory in a day.

Our true gratitude is reflected by our actions, so let us smile genuinely at more faces, look and really see the world around us as we live each amazing day to the fullest!

Students Take Active 'Stand' In Politics

AS EVERYONE KNOWS, November is the big showdown between the elephant and the donkey. Candidates are out shaking hands, friends "discuss" the issues and the men running, and campaign literature, buttons, and bumper strips deluge the public.

This is a year of different type of politics. The young people are the driving force on the national and local scene.

Youth between the ages of 18 and 24 will be voting in a national election for the first time, but the involvement doesn't stop there. People younger than 18 years of age are also out working to influence the vote of their friends as well as their parents' friends.

These concerned teen- agers realize that they too are influenced by who the political leaders will be. They know that the best choice must be made, or everyone will suffer.

Every young worker has specific reasons based on known facts for working for the man for whom he has chosen to campaign.

The young people of today are against straight-ticket voting and strong- party ties. They care only for the issues and if the candidates stand for honesty and good government. Good government rests in the hands of the good people who strive for fairness and honesty.

Political campaigning can be a great deal of work, but no job could be more fun or more rewarding if done right. The excitement of meeting and talking to the candidates and working with other young people fills one's mind with pleasant memories and pleasing self- satisfaction.

-- David Ziegenhorn

Political Influence Is Available To All

SENIORS OF TODAY will be the leaders of tomorrow, but leaders of what? Will they be leaders of a world where human suffering is prevalent, where wars destroy the homelands of many, and pollution destroys the homelands of all?

Will they be leaders of a world where diseases are conquered, where wars do not destroy lands, where people at least try to get along and preserve the earth as well as each other?

This power is at the finger tips of each individual of voting age. People can vote to preserve the lands from super- industrialization and from litter and pollution.

Voters can protect the wildlife and the country.

The more ambitious few can enter the realm of politics. Legislators can make the laws, expressing the feelings of the people. Statesmen and diplomats can influence the world for peace.

Remember, all the students in high school will soon be in the world on their own. It will be a world handed down by their elders and subject to change by the voters.

THE ACCOMPANIST for Modern Chorale is Bonnie Harris, a senior in SHS. Bonnie's name was omitted from the list of students who made Modern Chorale.

BARKER STAFFERS would like to congratulate Patricia Eaves on becoming the new Miss Sikeston.

PEPPY PEPPERS chosen for last week's game were all the girls who attended the Memphis— Fairley game. Despite the bad weather, these girls showed tremendous enthusiasm and their support was greatly appreciated.

MANY GIRLS left shoes and other articles of clothing at Linda Pobst's house after the Red Pepper initiation. These girls are urged to pick up their things as soon as possible.

We need a reason for speaking, we need none for keeping silent.

The greatest weakness of all weaknesses is the too great fear of seeming weak.

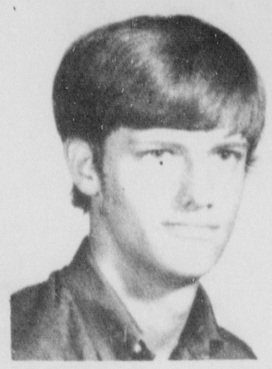
Bulldog Spotlight



This week's spotlight falls on Bulldog number 81, Dennie Breedlove. He is the Bulldogs' first string defensive end.

When not on the field, practicing or playing, he works from 8-10 in the morning and after football practice in the afternoons.

He is enrolled in a new course, bachelor living, and also attends distributive education, contemporary history, and physical education.

He resides at 314 Kinder Street with his brother, Mark, and his sister- in- law.

When asked what he liked about football, he replied, "I like the contact on the field."

A great obstacle to happiness is the expectation of too great happiness.

Growler Staff To Add New Feature:

Growler staff plans to add a new feature to the senior section of the yearbook this year.

When seniors turn in their glossy print from a studio, they are requested to turn in an identified sheet of paper with a brief inscription or quote. This sentence or phrase will appear with that senior's picture in the yearbook.

Purpose of the inscription is to reflect each person's thoughts, opinions, or personality in a way that seems very small but will enrich the memories of the yearbook in years to come.

Any questions concerning this writing should be directed to Patty Lee, Cheryl Presley, or Mrs. Tony Statler.

Students are reminded that any unacceptable quote will not be used, and another will be chosen in its place by the staff. Seniors' cooperation is requested in the selection and promptness in meeting the deadline of Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Demonstrations CanBe Peacefully Conducted

UNITED STATES is having problems with the present generation, the thinking youth of today. They are seeking to change some of the aspects of the nation, and trying to find themselves in society. They are trying to do this in various ways -- some peaceful; some not so peaceful.

A peaceful way is youth delegations to Washington, the dean's office, wherever the need arises for some kind of change.

A troublesome way is the student protests that are sweeping the nation in most of the colleges and some high schools.

Most of these demonstrations, as they are called, start out peacefully but sometimes end in riot, arrests, and sometimes bloodshed.

Two of the main causes of disruption of a peaceful protest are police interference and radical- minded young people.

We think these kind of disruptions should be dealt with immediately. We believe more stress should be put on the delegations because more seems to be accomplished through peaceful means.

Seniors Select Candidates For Growler Queen, King

Seniors elected candidates for Growler King and Queen Tuesday during homeroom period. The election will be in December, and this year everyone who buys a Growler will be allowed to vote.

The crowning will take place before Christmas vacation and will be organized by the journalism staff.

Following tradition this year's royalty will be given four special pages in the '73 yearbook for special full-length pictures.

Girls nominated for queen are Janet Caldwell, Carylon Carlton, Cindy Choate, Sue Dillender, Jenny Drumm, Donna Dunn, Kathy Frankum, Regina Harrington, Janice Hodges, Cathy Patterson, Cheryl Presley, Marsha Standridge, Diane Welborn.

Boys vying for the title of Growler King are Brad Buchanan, Gil Collom, Larry Garrett, Glenn Guttenfelder, David Hahs, Lee Haines, David Hough, Rikki LaPlant, Roy Marshall, Bill Wake, Robert Walker, and Aaron Yarber.

Once the populace begins to reason, all is lost.

Those not present are always in the wrong.

Scott County Health Center

1971 Annual Report

(No. 5 in a Series)

MATERNAL HEALTH

Admissions to service 61; Conferences with private physicians 23; Field visits to patients 53; Clinic and office visits by patients 197; Blood tests for syphilis 61; Blood tests for Rh factor and blood type 61; Blood tests for hemoglobin 169.

Total hours spent doing maternity services 275.0 hours.

Student nurses observing and taught at clinic 29.

The Scott County birth rate fell slightly in 1971, but the rate per 1000 population remained higher than for the country dance at the pre-natal clinics increased; probably because patients had more trouble finding private physicians who would take their cases. More people perhaps were out of work, and could not pay for private care.

During the illness of the Health Officer, Dr. Fred Thornton of Sikeston conducted the clinics. Without his help, there would not have been pre- natal clinics for several months. He was efficient, kind and very much appreciated.

Senior nursing students from Southeast Missouri University at Cape Girardeau, and these from the licensed practical nursing classes at Sikeston, observed and helped at the clinics.

Clinic patients who desired home deliveries by Mrs. Millie Watson, were required, as always, to be examined at least four times by competent physicians and must have been declared safe for home delivery. At the first sign of an abnormality, the patient was sent to her private physician who made the decision as to whether a home delivery might be safely considered. As always, if the patient seemed headed for difficulty, our hospital excellent relationship is greatly appreciated.

CHILD HEALTH SERVICES

INFANTS — Admission to service 234; Conference with private physicians 7; Visits to infants 50; Office and clinic visits by infants 503; Examined with parents present 340; P.K.U. urine tests 163; Vitamins given (bottles) 186; Total services 1540. Time spent on infant services 180.0 hours.

PRE- SCHOOL CHILDREN — Admission to service 337; Conferences with private physicians 1; Field visits to children 154; Office and clinic visits by children 783; Number examined with parents present 464; Vitamins given (Bottles) 121; Total services 2473. Time spent on pre- school children 233.0.

SCHOOL HEALTH SERVICES — Admissions to service 74; Conferences with private physicians 10; Field visits to children 69; Visits by school children to office 149; Visits to schools 86; Hearing screening tests 531; Vision screening tests 679; Tuberculin tests at schools 1973; Bottles of penicillin furnished to rheumatic fever children 96; Total services to school children 205.5. Time spent doing school health services 305.0 hours.

Child Health Conferences, where infants and pre- school children under the age of 4 years received medical supervision, were held each month at Chaffee, Illmo, Oran and Sikeston with Dr. Buckthorpe in charge. During her illness other arrangements had to be made.

Dr. Jean and Dr. Lynnell DuPont, working as their own busy schedules allowed, very efficiently conducted the Sikeston clinic which had become an all day affair several years ago when the attendance was sometimes as high as 62 children. It was impossible to examine that many youngsters, give them needed immuniztions, and conference with parents in the two hour period, previously allowed.

The Chaffee, Oran and Illmo groups were each scheduled for two hours, but often were longer than that. Since these towns were only a few miles apart, these three clinics were combined, and held at Chaffee with an extremely busy Dr. W. H. Wehmeyer in charge. Without his great kindness, all three would have had to be discontinued. Here again, the size became almost prohibitive. As soon as Dr. Buckthorpe became well enough to increase her workload, the Illmo group was again cared for at their hometown. The Oran children, however, continued to go to Chaffee where Dr. Wehmeyer graciously agreed to continue in charge.

Home Fire Drills Are Important

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Suicidal Fraud

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Whenever Buster sensed that he was on the end of a losing argument with his wife, he'd stomp out of the room with the dramatic pronouncement that he was going to kill himself with his mood determining the mode. He'd either take along a gun to plug himself, a rope to choke himself or a bottle to poison himself. And on each occasion, Buster's frantic wife would follow him out of the room pleading that he do nothing foolish until, one day, she stayed behind calmly reading the newspaper.

Finding himself in the basement with no one pleading with him, Buster began tapping lightly on some pipes to let his wife know where he was. When he finally decided that she had no intention of coming to his rescue, he rejectedly went upstairs to bed. The scene, however didn't end there. The next morning, Buster's wife concluded the drama by starting suit against him for a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

"He's kept me on tenerhooks for years with his empty threats of suicide," she complained in court, "and frankly, I've just had it."

"Nonsense," was Buster's answer. "She's not entitled to any divorce. I've been a good husband to her. As for my inclination toward suicide, that's my problem and not hers. After all, if I ever carried it out, I'd be hurting only myself and not her."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free Buster's wife from her "suicidal" husband?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Buster deliberately impaired his wife's emotional and physical health by falsely and repeatedly threatening to commit suicide. It was pretty obvious, noted the judge, that Buster would never have committed suicide unless he could have accomplished it without killing himself.

Love and war live side by side in the history of man. A world of sad and often cruel contrasts. We ask "Why?" Why poverty in a land of plenty? Why alienation when we are all born to the same family of man? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question . . .

Total hours spent doing maternity services 275.0 hours.

Student nurses observing and taught at clinic 29.

The Scott County birth rate fell slightly in 1971, but the rate per 1000 population remained higher than for the country dance at the pre-natal clinics increased; probably because patients had more trouble finding private physicians who would take their cases. More people perhaps were out of work, and could not pay for private care.

During the illness of the Health Officer, Dr. Fred Thornton of Sikeston conducted the clinics. Without his help, there would not have been pre- natal clinics for several months. He was efficient, kind and very much appreciated.

Senior nursing students from Southeast Missouri University at Cape Girardeau, and these from the licensed practical nursing classes at Sikeston, observed and helped at the clinics.

Clinic patients who desired home deliveries by Mrs. Millie Watson, were required, as always, to be examined at least four times by competent physicians and must have been declared safe for home delivery. At the first sign of an abnormality, the patient was sent to her private physician who made the decision as to whether a home delivery might be safely considered. As always, if the patient seemed headed for difficulty, our hospital excellent relationship is greatly appreciated.

CHILD HEALTH SERVICES

INFANTS — Admission to service 234; Conference with private physicians 7; Visits to infants 50; Office and clinic visits by infants 503; Examined with parents present 340; P.K.U. urine tests 163; Vitamins given (bottles) 186; Total services 1540. Time spent on infant services 180.0 hours.

SCHOOL HEALTH SERVICES — Admissions to service 74; Conferences with private physicians 10; Field visits to children 69; Visits by school children to office 149; Visits to schools 86; Hearing screening tests 531; Vision screening tests 679; Tuberculin tests at schools 1973; Bottles of penicillin furnished to rheumatic fever children 96; Total services to school children 205.5. Time spent doing school health services 305.0 hours.

Child Health Conferences, where infants and pre- school children under the age of 4 years received medical supervision, were held each month at Chaffee, Illmo, Oran and Sikeston with Dr. Buckthorpe in charge. During her illness other arrangements had to be made.

Dr. Jean and Dr. Lynnell DuPont, working as their own busy schedules allowed, very efficiently conducted the Sikeston clinic which had become an all day affair several years ago when the attendance was sometimes as high as 62 children. It was impossible to examine that many youngsters, give them needed immuniztions, and conference with parents in the two hour period, previously allowed.

The Chaffee, Oran and Illmo groups were each scheduled for two hours, but often were longer than that. Since these towns were only a few miles apart, these three clinics were combined, and held at Chaffee with an extremely busy Dr. W. H. Wehmeyer in charge. Without his great kindness, all three would have had to be discontinued. Here again, the size became almost prohibitive. As soon as Dr. Buckthorpe became well enough to increase her workload, the Illmo group was again cared for at their hometown. The Oran children, however, continued to go to Chaffee where Dr. Wehmeyer graciously agreed to continue in charge.

The Case Of The Suicidal Fraud

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Whenever Buster sensed that he was on the end of a losing argument with his wife, he'd stomp out of the room with the dramatic pronouncement that he was going to kill himself with his mood determining the mode. He'd either take along a gun to plug himself, a rope to choke himself or a bottle to poison himself. And on each occasion, Buster's frantic wife would follow him out of the room pleading that he do nothing foolish until, one day, she stayed behind calmly reading the newspaper.

Finding himself in the basement with no one pleading with him, Buster began tapping lightly on some pipes to let his wife know where he was. When he finally decided that she had no intention of coming to his rescue, he rejectedly went upstairs to bed. The scene, however didn't end there. The next morning, Buster's wife concluded the drama by starting suit against him for a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

"He's kept me on tenerhooks for years with his empty threats of suicide," she complained in court, "and frankly, I've just had it."

"Nonsense," was Buster's answer. "She's not entitled to any divorce. I've been a good husband to her. As for my inclination toward suicide, that's my problem and not hers. After all, if I ever carried it out, I'd be hurting only myself and not her."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free Buster's wife from her "suicidal" husband?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Buster deliberately impaired his wife's emotional and physical health by falsely and repeatedly threatening to commit suicide. It was pretty obvious, noted the judge, that Buster would never have committed suicide unless he could have accomplished it without killing himself.

Man Breaks Into Jail For Protection

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — John Swanson, 25, Bloomington, broke into the McLean County jail Friday night, seeking protection from a man he said threatened him with a rifle.

Swanson said he was driving his car shortly after midnight when he noticed he was being followed. He thought he was being tailgated by friends, Swanson said, so he stopped his car and got out.

Swanson said the man following him pointed a rifle at him and said: "Get out of town, I'm going to put a large hole in you. I'm going to blow you away."

When the man allowed him to leave, Swanson drove to the McLean County jail, with the man following him.

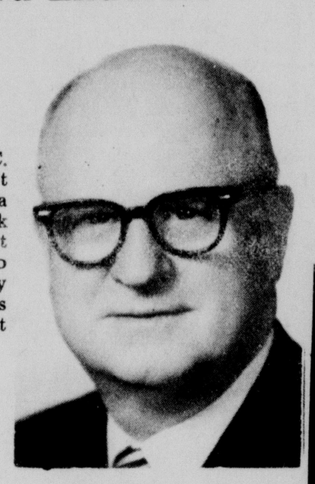
The man threatened him again, Swanson said, so he ran to the jail's kitchen door, found it locked, hollered for help and then broke a window and jumped inside.

Police arrested Douglas Mack, 28, St. Charles, Mo., and charged him with aggravated assault.

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany (AP) — Helmut Fischer, who acted the part of Jesus Christ in the 1970 Oberammergau Passion Play, and Martin Wagner, who played Judas, have been elected to the town council.

—The Standard Endorses—

We Endorse James C. Kirkpatrick, incumbent Secretary of State. As a journalist, Jim Kirkpatrick learned early how to cut out the frills and get down to business. And that's exactly what he's done while serving as Secretary of State for the past two terms.



James C. Kirkpatrick

His primary intention has been to modernize the office to give Missourians better service for less money. This included a revamping of the filing system or "paperwork jungle" which saved taxpayers about $2.75 million.

But Kirkpatrick's interests are far wider than office procedures. His newspaper career started at Central Missouri State College and the University of Missouri School of Journalism which later awarded him a medal for distinguished service to journalism. He is publisher of Windsor Review, a blue-ribbon weekly newspaper, and former editor of the Warrensburg Star-Journal and Jefferson City News- Tribune.

His dedicated work in behalf of better roads was recognized by the Missouri Good Roads and Streets Association's Scroll of Honor in 1968. Also, in that year he was one of 100 outstanding Missourians elected to the Missouri Academy of Squires.

Jim and his wife, the former Jessamine Young, live in Windsor, Missouri. They have one son, Don.

Dowd Ahead In Unreported Contributions

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic candidate for governor, leads other political candidates in the state in the amount of unreported contributions, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat said in its weekend edition.

The Globe said it used a team of reporters to check all television stations in the state and stations in Illinois, Kentucky and Kansas used by Missouri candidates. This was done because "television commercials were generally the largest expenditures by candidates," the paper said.

The article said the undisclosed funds were contributed more than 90 days before the August primary. State law does not require disclosure of campaign contributions prior to 90 days before an election.

The Globe said it found Dowd spent $105,448 on television advertising, while reporting spending of $73,958.

The man threatened him again, Swanson said, so he ran to the jail's kitchen door, found it locked, hollered for help and then broke a window and jumped inside.

Police arrested Douglas Mack, 28, St. Charles, Mo., and charged him with aggravated assault.

—The Standard Endorses—

We Endorse James C. Kirkpatrick, incumbent Secretary of State. As a journalist, Jim Kirkpatrick learned early how to cut out the frills and get down to business. And that's exactly what he's done while serving as Secretary of State for the past two terms.

James C. Kirkpatrick

His primary intention has been to modernize the office to give Missourians better service for less money. This included a revamping of the filing system or "paperwork jungle" which saved taxpayers about $2.75 million.

But Kirkpatrick's interests are far wider than office procedures. His newspaper career started at Central Missouri State College and the University of Missouri School of Journalism which later awarded him a medal for distinguished service to journalism. He is publisher of Windsor Review, a blue-ribbon weekly newspaper, and former editor of the Warrensburg Star-Journal and Jefferson City News-Tribune.

His dedicated work in behalf of better roads was recognized by the Missouri Good Roads and Streets Association's Scroll of Honor in 1968. Also, in that year he was one of 100 outstanding Missourians elected to the Missouri Academy of Squires.

Jim and his wife, the former Jessamine Young, live in Windsor, Missouri. They have one son, Don.

Dowd Ahead In Unreported Contributions

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic candidate for governor, leads other political candidates in the state in the amount of unreported contributions, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat said in its weekend edition.

The Globe said it used a team of reporters to check all television stations in the state and stations in Illinois, Kentucky and Kansas used by Missouri candidates. This was done because "television commercials were generally the largest expenditures by candidates," the paper said.

The article said the undisclosed funds were contributed more than 90 days before the August primary. State law does not require disclosure of campaign contributions prior to 90 days before an election.

The Globe said it found Dowd spent $105,448 on television advertising, while reporting spending of $73,958.

What You Want To Know

Q. I would like to lodge a complaint about the scheduling of "All In the Family" on Satruday night, which is the night most young people go out. I think this show is very popular with old and young alike, but it seems to me that only the old folks are benefiting from having it where it is. Is there a chance, if enough of us in the age bracket of 20— 25 write the network, they will consider changing it? —M.O.T., Charlotte, N.C.

A. "All in the Family" is doing very well in the ratings in the time spot it now has. The top brass at CBS switched the show to the Saturday night slot after the entire schedule was firmed for this season, and it looks as if they didn't make a mistake ...except according to fans like you.

Q. I heard that "Bonanza" is not faring as big in the ratings as it used to. Is this true? I watch the show every Sunday and I know many of my friends do. Of course, we're all well over 50.— Mrs. G.M. Sacramento, Calif.

A. "Bonanza" is finally beginning to show its age, at least in the ratings. It is not doing very well this season, but you never can tell about these things. It may still have some audience life, judging from your reaction.

Q. I have been having a running argument with my friend regarding cigarette commercials on TV. Didn't they take them off entirely or did they confine the showing of cigarette commercials to the late show movies? I could swear I've seen some cigarette commercials on the late show recently. —Mrs. R.M., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Cigarette commercials are no longer allowed on TV...period.

Q. Elvis Presley still turns me on, and I wish he would be on TV more often. Is he going to do any guest appearances or does he only appear in specials? —R.L., Fair Oaks, Calif.

Elvis usually confines his TV appearances to his own specials. However, he doesn't have one slated for the near future. You'll have to content yourself with his many movies, which are shown on TV with some regularity.

Weathermen Get TV from 4 Nations

By WERNER VOLLMANN
Associated Press Writer

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Two men on top of a 10,000-foot mountain probably are the loneliest Austrians. But they also are the only Austrians who can choose from seven television channels.

They are the observers on towering Sonnblick Mountain in the Austrian Alps, Europe's oldest meteorological observation point perched on the mountain top like an eagle's nest.

When they are on duty, they are really on their own. In wintertime, when blizzards howl around the observation post, they are marooned for days.

Sometimes weeks pass before they see anybody else, says Luitpold Binder, secretary of the Sonnblick Society and chief of department in the Central Meteorological Institute in Vienna.

The station is not large. It consists of three small rooms with sleeping quarters underneath the roof.

A normal shift is two men, but sometimes this is cut to one, to allow for days off.

Because of the great altitude of the station, the television set there can receive the programs of four countries. Austria has only two TV channels. The other TV channels received at the station are from neighboring countries.

Three weeks work by the weather observers are followed by one week off. During summertime, tourists flock to a mountain lodge next to the observation station.

The television — and the tourists — are welcome to the observers as a diversion from their instrument readings at three-hour intervals during the day. They relay their findings to the Salzburg Meteorological Station via radio telephone.

In picking the weather observers, the Central Meteorological Institute always looks first for men from nearby valley villages. They have to be expert mountaineers. Whatever else they need for the job they learn on the spot.

While the wages of $200 a month are small, most applicants believe that with free room and board, they can save money during their mountain isolation.

One added, "Where else can I get seven television channels."

Q. I have been very happy that a local TV station in our area has been playing reruns of the old "Twilight Zone" series. Compared to the current Rod Serling series, "Night Gallery," the "Twilight Zone" series is much, much greater. In fact, I think "Night Gallery" stinks, in plain English. It's so ridiculous most of the time. "Twilight Zone" was good and scary. Please print my letter. —K.C., Norwalk, Conn.

A. Many fans of Rod Serling's "Twilight Zone" have written our mailbag expressing acute disappointment with his latest series, "Night Gallery" In any case, "Night Gallery" is renewed for the rest of the season.

Q. I have a bet with my next- dor neighbor. Before Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz starred in "I Love Lucy," did they star in a TV version of her famous radio show, "My Favorite Husband," and wasn't this TV show a big flop? —D.M., Milford, Conn.

A. If you said Lucy and Desi flopped in a TV version of "My Favorite Husband," you lost the bet. Lucy and Desi made TV comedy history with their "I Love Lucy" series. There was a TV version of "My Favorite Husband," but it starred Joan Caulfield and Barry Nelson. Lucille Ball and Richard Denning were the radio stars of "My Favorite Husband."

Q. I hope to win a rather large bet. I say that "Route 66" started on TV with the guy from "Adam 12" and George Chakiris playing the leads. Then the part played by Chakiris was taken over by Glenn Corbett. Am I right? My friend says I have it all right except the part played by Chakiris. He says another actor with a Greek name played the part. Who wins the bet? —M.C., Morristown, N.J.

A. Your friend wins ..."Route 66" starred Martin Milner and George Maharis when it premiered on TV. After Maharis left the series, he was replaced by Glenn Corbett.

Desi Arnaz Jr., Lucille Ball's real- life son, guest stars as Craig Carter in the episode.

"The Hill" Sean Connery, Harry Andrews, Ossie Davis. Director Sidney Lumet has etched a chilling study of a British military prison in Africa during WW II. The hitch here is that the inmates are British soldiers. Their almost inhuman treatment makes an absorbing and memorable drama. Sean Connery has never been better as an outspoken, tough prisoner and the supporting cast is flawless, especially Harry Andrews as the sinister head of the detention camp.

Children Learn Problems Have Several Solutions

On New "Fat Albert and The Cosby Kids" Series

Do you remember the first time you played hookey from school? Had a tooth pulled? Got caught telling a fib?

A panel of distinguished educators and psychologists are reliving those familar childhood experiences as part of their contribution to an innovative children's television series, "Fat Albert and The Cosby Kids," which is broadcast Saturday 11:30 - 12:00 PM, on the CBS Television Network.

Coordinator of the panel, Dr. Gordon L. Berry (Assistant Dean in the UCLA Graduate School of Education), calls the procedure "probably as educational for the educators and writers as it is for the youngsters."

"Adults are, after all, post- graduate children," adds Dr. Berry.

Representing a diversity of academic specialty from both East and West Coasts, the 11- member panel of experts assists Bill Cosby and the producers, Filmation Associates, with establishing objective, choosing central themes and reviewing the content of the animated stories, which are designed to entertain young children while guiding them in the development of judgement and moral values.

Each half- hour program (which Bill Cosby himself opens and closes) presents a problem familiar to all young children – in their relationships with other children, with adults, with those in authority, with fears, doubts and questions. Then, in animated form and through the actions of make- believe children, the storyline offers guidance to the solution of that problem.

Says Dr. Berry: "The story also says that there are alternative ways of solving everyday problems. It offers each child the challenge of deciding what he would do in the given situation. The core of our format stresses the individual differences among children rather than the similarities."

The august group of educators does not meet formally to exchange their assessments of and make their contributions to the programs content. Each member works alone as a "committee of one," viewing the suggested premises submitted by writers Jim Ryan and Bill Danch from the standpoint of his own special field. Panelists are asked by Dr. Berry to "test" each story idea as to its usefulness for children, its educational value and psychological effect, and to offer solutions on how best to resolve the problems presented.

Dr. Berry then works directly with Ryan and Danch, combining his summary of the opinions expressed with the writers' creative entertainment expertise to achieve the completed script, which only then goes into the production stage.
